Kidnap suspect seized in Massachusetts

by TONI GINNETTI

The five-month, nationwide manhunt for the former Elk Grove Village man charged with murder, kidnaping and the attempted murder of a Rhode Island state trooper ended in a Chelsea, Mass., early morning shootout Friday.

The fugitive, Robert Edward Williams Jr., 23, was seriously wounded in a shootout with FBI agents, Massachusetts and Rhode Island state troopers and Chelsea police.

His capture came less than three days after Williams shot and wounded a Rhode Island trooper who stopped him for a speeding violation.

WILLIAMS IS THE man federal authorities have sought since April for the abduction and apparent slaying of a wealthy California woman whose abandoned vehicle was found in Rolling Meadows four days after her disappearance.

He also is believed to have been the man who attempted April 12 to rob a Woodfield store, abducted an Itasca woman at gunpoint from the Woodfield Mall parking lot and a Glencoe woman several days later.

Williams was apprehended Friday as authorities moved in on a stakeout of a Chelsea, Mass., apartment where Williams was believed to be staying with a girl friend.

Frank Leonard, supervisor in the FBI bureau in Boston, said Friday Williams came to the apartment at about 6:45 a.m. but apparently sensed trouble and attempted to flee in a 1976 Chrysler Cordova, stolen earlier Friday morning in Warwick, R.I.

HE WAS SHOT twice in the abdomen by Rhode Island Trooper John R. Divine.

Williams underwent 12 hours of surgery in Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston.

Hospitals officials reported late Friday that Williams was in stable condition in the intensive care unit, but was on the "danger list."

Leonard said there were unconfirmed reports that at least 12 pints of blood were used during the surgery.

Williams apparently had been shot earlier attempting to flee Rhode Island Trooper Lawrence Kestler, 24, who stopped Williams late Tuesday night on U.S. 295 in Johnston, R.I., Leonard said.

Williams was driving a 1973 Torino stolen Sept. 7 from Chelsea, Mass., when Kestler stopped him for a speeding violation. Williams shot the trooper in the side and fled, later abandoning the car in Cranston, R.I.

KESTLER WAS not injured seriously and identified Williams as his assailant from a mug shot.

A .38-caliber diamond-back Colt special revolver was found in the vehicle abandoned by Williams and is believed to be the weapon used against Kestler, Leonard said.

Williams had been hunted since April by FBI authorities although he had not been included on the agency's

4 charged with theft after chase

Mount Prospect and Streamwood police have charged four teen-age runaways with auto theft and burglary after they allegedly led police on a 100 m.p.h. chase up the Northwest Tollway into Wisconsin early Friday morning before crashing into a roadblock.

Police said two 14-year-olds and two 15-year-olds, one a runaway from the Audy Juvenile Home, Chicago, and three runaways from Maryville Academy, Des Plaines, stole a pickup truck in Mount Prospect and burglarized a home in Streamwood shortly after their escape Thursday afternoon.

The youths in the pickup truck then ran a toll booth on I-90 near Elgin at 1:30 a.m. Friday, triggering a 60-mile chase by police which ended near Janesville, Wis.

THE TRUCK, driven by the 15-year-old Chicago youth, eluded Illinois State Police, Winnebago County Sheriff's Police and Wisconsin State Police before crashing into a Beloit Police Dept. squad car at 2:15 a.m., said Det. Sgt. Donald Jobe of the Illinois State Police.

Jobe said the youths fended off pursuing police cars by throwing a television set and tools, believed stolen in the Streamwood burglary, on the roadway. Jobe said the youths also tried to ram squad cars that pulled alongside.

A Beloit city patrolman parked his car as a roadblock on I-90 in Rock County, Wis., and waited for the youths, Jobe said. When the patrolman saw the youths approaching at 100 m.p.h., showing no signs of slowing rown, he threw his car into gear and sped off, Jobe said.

However, the pickup truck rammed the rear of the patrolman's car. The youths were transported to Rock County Jail in Janesville. No one was reported injured in the crash.

DAMAGE TO THE pickup truck, stolen from the home of Michael Honan, 6 N. Marcella, Mount Prospect, also was not reported.

Police Friday afternoon transported the youths to the Mount Prospect police station, where they were charged with the theft of the truck and the burglary of the David Loosemorris home, 121 Egan Ct., Streamwood.

Police sent petitions of delinquency to Juvenile Division of Cook County Circuit Court, Chicago. The youths were transported to the Audy Home to await juvenile court action.

PLEASANT AUTUMN days are given a friendly touch by Charles Voelker, 70, and his pal, Misty. Neighbors and strangers, alike, can count on receiving a friendly wave as they pass Voelker's home on Dwyer Avenue. "Some people I don't even know wave back to me," he says.

Enrollment lag strikes village's school districts

by JUDY JOBBITT

The five school districts serving Arlington Heights have been hit with declining enrollment this fall. Arlington Heights Dist. 25 has shown the greatest drop — 6.82 per cent.

Dist. 25 enrollment figures for the first six days of school show an average attendance of 7,411 students compared to 7,953 students last year.

Gerald Williams, Dist. 25 director of administration and planning, said, "The actual drop was a bit more than we anticipated. It is about 235 students less than the projections."

LAST YEAR THE district lost 424 students from the 1974-75 school year, a 6 per cent drop in enrollment. Williams said the district anticipates the decline to continue for the next 10 years.

"What generally happens is you are getting significantly fewer kindergarten students than you had graduate from the eighth grade the year before," he said.

Dist. 25 had 1,064 eighth graders graduate last June but only enrolled 705 kindergarten students.

He said the enrollment figures "substantiate" the need for the district to discuss closing more schools in addition to North School, which was closed this fall.

Dist. 25 and the other districts serving Arlington Heights reflect a national enrollment trend. School enrollment has dropped as the birth rate has declined and the housing market has slowed.

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 showed a 3.13 per cent drop in enrollment from 8,235 students last fall to 7,977 this year.

LARRY WEAVER, Dist. 21 assistant superintendent for administration, said the figures "go along with the projections." The district has shown a decline in enrollment for the past two years.

He said the enrollment trend should reverse within the next few years because the district has undeveloped land that should be built up as the construction market rises.

Prospect Heights Dist. 23 showed a slight drop in enrollment this year with a loss of 17 students. The six day enrollment was 1,707 students.

Supt. Edward Grodsky said the district had anticipated losing more students but gained several from apartment complexes and houses that were completed during the summer.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 showed a 5.6 per cent decline in enrollment this fall with 9,868 students compared with 10,455 last year.

Al Stone, Dist. 59 associate superintendent for personnel, said the figure reflects last spring's projections.

The district is projecting that the downward trend will continue for at least four years.

High School Dist. 214 showed a slight decrease in enrollment with 17 fewer students this year.

LAST YEAR, with 19,823 students enrolled, Dist. 214 had an increase of 234 students. However, this year the district enrolled only 19,806.

William Reid, Dist. 214 coordinator of research, testing and data processing, said the district expects to be at a "plateau" in enrollment for the next three years. "After that there is the potential for change" as the declining enrollment in the elementary schools begins to hit the high school district, he said.

Enrollment in high schools serving Arlington Heights remained fairly stable, with Hersey High School's dropping by 67 students and Buffalo Grove High School's gaining 78 students.

Reid said the enrollment changes at these schools reflect the termination of an option offered students who attended Hersey but were transfered to Buffalo Grove when the school opened. These students were allowed to continue attending Hersey.

Other high schools serving Arlington include: Arlington, down 31 students; Prospect, up 36 students; Forest View, down 48 students; and Rolling Meadows, down six students.

Senate nixes abortion funds for poor

by DONALD LAMBRO

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted 47-21 Friday to prohibit using federal funds to perform abortions for the poor unless the mother's life is endangered by a pregnancy.

The prohibition — a compromise worked out between both houses of Congress — was contained in a $56.6 billion appropriations measure which was sent to President Ford who may veto the bill because it is $4 billion more than he requested.

The House approved the abortion ban Thursday, 256-114.

The government paid for more than 250,000 abortions last year under several programs, although the bulk of them were financed through Medicaid.

THE PROVISION would prohibit any Medicaid funds from being used for abortions "as a method of family planning or for emotional or social convenience."

It specifically allows federal funds to be spent for abortions only when the mother's life would be "endangered if the fetus were carried to term."

The amendment was the subject of bitter debate in a House-Senate conference committee which met for several weeks in an effort to iron out their differences.

The House had originally included a flat prohibition on abortions in its version of the bill, but the Senate had deleted the language.

Both houses of Congress had earlier approved the entire funding measure except for the abortion provision, which was the only remaining roadblock to passage.

SEN. EDWARD Brooke, R-Mass., one of the conferees who had worked on the compromise, voted against it, calling the provision "unconstitutional and unconscionable."

"I cannot in good conscience vote for it," Brooke said. "It clearly discriminates against those who are too poor to afford abortions except through Medicaid."

Brooke predicted that the Supreme Court, which is considering three abortion cases, would strike down the prohibition.

Arlington seeks funds for building

Arlington Heights officials are hopeful a $2 billion public works act recently passed by Congress will provide necessary funding for a new public safety building. Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson Friday said he expects the village to apply for funds under the Local Public Works Capital Development and Investment Act as soon as appropriations are announced by the U.S. House of Representatives. Hanson has called on the village board to authorize construction of a new public safety building because of insufficient space in the current police headquarters in the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd. Construction of a 50,000-square-foot building on village-owned land directly east of the municipal building on Sigwalt Street has been recommended in a study by two members of the police department.

Bicyclist, 11, struck by truck

An 11-year-old Arlington Heights girl was admitted to Northwest Community Hospital after a bicycle she was riding in the village Friday morning was struck by a pickup truck driven by a Wheeling man, police reported. Police said a truck driven by Roger W. Parks, 580 S. Custer, Wheeling, struck a bicycle ridden by Jacqueline O'Connor, 605 N. Chestnut St., Arlington Heights, at 8 a.m. Friday on Miner Street west of Arlington Heights Road. Parks reportedly was pulling out of a gas station driveway when Miss O'Connor rode into the path of his truck. Police did not ticket Parks. Arlington Heights firefighters rushed Miss O'Connor to the hospital, where she was admitted for observation of a lump on her head. She was reported in stable condition Friday night.

Fire guts abandoned house

A fire late Friday night gutted an abandoned house on Dundee Road near Rand Road in Palatine Township. Passersby reported the blaze in the structure shortly after 11 p.m. Friday. Two pumpers carrying eight firefighters from the Palatine Fire Dept. responded and had the blaze under control by 11:30 p.m. No injuries were reported in the fire. Cause of the blaze was under investigation late Friday.

Dist. 23 talks at stalemate

Contract talks have broken off in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 with teachers saying they will not return to the bargaining table until the board is "willing to compromise." The stalemate was reached over committee proposals submitted by both sides to investigate alternative methods of determining teacher salaries. Teachers have proposed the district use a standard salary schedule for determining raises. Under the existing system, teachers negotiate the total amount of money to be used for raises and then receive a guaranteed increase from those funds. In addition, teachers receive a merit raise determined by a performance evaluation.

Debate hampers lake water plan

by KURT BAER

Disagreement over how much water the Northwest suburbs will use in the years ahead is hampering local plans for a Lake Michigan water pipeline, Charles A. Willis, chairman of SHARE + 3 said Friday.

"SHARE + 3 is actively planning to spend a substantial amount of money to get a supply of lake water. It makes a significant difference if the planning is to be done on the basis of meeting 40 per cent or 100 per cent of our future needs," Willis said at a lake water allocation hearing in Chicago.

He and two other Northwest suburban officials criticized future water use estimates prepared by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission. NIPC's figures for most of the eight Northwest suburban communities SHARE + 3 are substantially lower than the suburbs' own estimates for water in the year 1980 and beyond.

Palatine for example estimates it will need 10.99 million gallons of water per day in 1980 while the most recent NIPC projections show 5.44 million gallons per day.

BOTH THE LOCAL and NIPC estimates have been submitted to the Illinois Dept. of Transportation which is expected to announce Lake Michigan Water allocations before the end of the year.

Willis said he hopes the state will try to reconcile the conflicting estimates before it decides how much water each community will get.

"If there is a real difference between the two sets of numbers, we could spend the next 20 years allocating Lake Michigan water," he said.

John Hossack, Hoffman Estates public works director, told the state's hearing officer Friday that NIPC's projections are about 10 per cent below the village's estimates for 1985-90.

HOSSACK SAID a major part of 930 acres of undeveloped land already in Hoffman Estates is likely to be developed commercially which means the amount of water the village will use per capita will increase.

Erwin W. Jentsch, attorney representing Schaumburg, said an estimate of manufacturing activity in the village NIPSC used to help calculate future water needs is "grossly understated."

For 1980 NIPC forecasts that 8,500 people will be employed in manufacturing in Schaumburg. But the village estimated that 11,000 to 12,000 peoplt already are working at manufacturing jobs in Schaumburg, Jentsch said.

MOTOROLA ALONE has 6,000 manufacturing employes and two other new large employers — Jorgenson Steel and Medcoa Co. of Chicago — will occupy new buildings in Schaumburg this year, he said.

"We suggest that Schaumburg's population figures already exceed what NIPC has projected," he said.

Barry Tucker, Illinois Dept. of Transportation hearing officer on lake water allocation, said it is "the province of the department to attempt to reconcile the conflicting data on the record before making an allocation."

Illinois is limited by a 1967 Supreme Court order to a maximum lake water diversion of 3,200 cubic feet per second. Requests for water from current and potential users total more than 4,000 cubic feet per second.

THE FIRST ALLOCATION will be in 1980. Allocations will be reviewed and adjusted periodically after that.

SHARE + 3, a coalition of Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Buffalo Grove, has ordered an update of an earlier $29 million estimate of the cost of building a lake water pipeline from O'Hare Airport west to Schaumburg Road along the Northwest tollway.

How the pipeline is engineered will depend on how much lake water the Northwest Suburbs are allocated, Willis said.

Officials have not planned in detail for the possibility that there will not be enough lake water to meet suburban needs after 1980. There are proposals to increase the maximum diversion beyond the 3,200 cubic feet per second limit.

Suburbs also may be able to use existing wells to supplement lake water supplies during peak demand periods although this is not now part of the state plan.

GOP hopefuls threatened by battle between Dems

The battle between two Democrats for the traditionally Democratic Illinois House seat from the 3rd Legislative District will make the November election "the most difficult election in years" for the district's two Republicans, the two GOP state representatives agreed Friday.

Speaking before the Elk Grove Township Republican Organization, State Rep. Virginia Madconald, R-Arlington Heights, and State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Schaumburg, said the race between Democrats Joan Brennan of Elk Grove Village and State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, may pose a threat to one of the Republicans' seats.

The 3rd District consists of Schaumburg and Elk Grove twonships and parts of Wheeling and Palatine townships.

MRS. BRENNAN is running as a "regular" Democrat, loyal to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, and is considered a rival of Mrs. Chapman, who has been independent of Daley.

Under Illinois law, three state representatives are elected from each district, with each party traditionally running two candidates. Most suburban districts, including the 3rd, usually elect two Republicans and one Democrat.

"The mayor of the City of Chicago has taken quite an interest in the suburbs," Totten said, "and most of the activity in the 3rd District has been designed to help Joan Brennan. That activity can only generate more interest in the Democratic race."

Two Democratic clubs loyal to Daley have been formed in Palatine and Schaumburg townships, and are supporting Mrs. Brennan.

12,000 TWA mechanics on strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The union representing 12,000 mechanics at Trans World Airlines struck the airline at 11 p.m. (Chicago time) Friday putting an immediate halt to all TWA flights.

No new talks were set but negotiators for both the airline and the International Assn. of Machinists were prepared to go back to the bargaining table at the request of federal mediators.

John Corris, a TWA spokesman, said the airline would be contacting passengers about the strike and attempting to place them on flights with other airlines.

"Tomorrow being Saturday is a light travel day and Sunday is light as well, so there won't be any real push for the weekend," he said.

Both sides talked almost to the deadline and a machinist at the site of the talks said there was hope they would go on after midnight but soon thereafter they broke off.

The union took a vote a couple weeks ago, agreeing to strike at the end of a 30-day cooling off period which ended at midnight. The three-year contract expired in October.

House OKs probe of JFK, King deaths

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House concluded Friday that enough new questions have been raised since the assassinations of President Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr. to warrant a special committee to make new investigations.

It voted, 280-65, to establish a select committee to not only reopen the investigations of those two deaths but also "of any others the select committee shall determine." The panel would have to be recreated in January.

The new panel's first chairman, retiring Rep. Thomas N. Downing, D-Va., said recent revelations of CIA and FBI activities relating to the investigations of the deaths raised enough questions to justify new probes.

He cited the deaths of two Mafia figures recruited by the CIA to kill Cubna Premier Fidel Castro and possible ties to the Mafia and Cuba by Kennedy assassination figures which were unknown to the Warren Commission when it said Lee Harvey Oswald was the lone assassin and that no conspiracy was involved.

Other allegations of a sloppy investigation and wrongdoing by the FBI into the Kennedy assassination, its harassment of King and the fact that King's assassin has been denied a new trial were cited as justification for the special panel.

Downing said, "I am convinced a conspiracy was involved" in the Kennedy death. The American people want and deserve to know the truth, he said.

But Rep. B. F. Sisk, D-Calif., told the House, "I thought we put this turkey to bed a long time ago" when the Rules Committee voted against it last March. " t's a total waste of time" instigated by "plain witch-hunters who have some kind of melodramatic desire for the morbid," he said.

Much of the opposition centered on the authority for the committee to look into other deaths besides those of Kennedy and King. It could look into the assassinations of Presidents Lincoln, McKinley and Garfield, opponents said.

"For the present the committee's efforts will be concentrated on the deaths of these two people," Downing said.

Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., said the scope of the panel's powers was broadened because of the recent deaths of Sam Giancana and John Roselli, two Mafia figures connected with a CIA plot to assassinate Castro.

Downing promptly asked for $250,000 to hire staff and begin hearings before the end of the year. But Rep. Frank Thompson D-N D N. J. chairman of the House Ad ministration Committee which authorizes such funds, questioned setting up a committee two weeks before the scheduled end of the session when it would have to be recreated with the seating of a new Congress in January.

Jobs bill passes House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House gave its final approval Friday to the Democratic Congress' two major job programs for the year.

The Senate is expected to complete action and send them to the White House next week.

The House voted 263 to 53 to approve the House-Senate conference version of a $3.7 billion appropriation for public works jobs, budget aid to state and local governments and money for construction of water treatment plants.

Sponsors claim the measure would create 300,000 jobs, mainly in the construction industry, where the August unemployment rate was 17 per cent.

Congress authorized roughly the same public works package over President Ford's veto in July. This bill — except for a $200 million cut — merely provides the money.

Ford — who claims the program would produce far fewer jobs, would involve high cost per job and would risk future inflation — hasn't said whether he will sign or veto the money bill. The House vote was well over the two-thirds it would need to override.

The House then voted 295 to 9 to approve a conference version of bill to extend 260,000 existing pubilc service jobs in state and local governments through the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Mental patient gives up; hostage unhurt

A mental patient surrendered to his attorney and SWAT officers Friday in Coral Gables, Fla., releasing unharmed the female therapist he held hostage for more than 24 hours in a windowless room. Ford signs stop-gap tax bill

President Ford signed another stop-gap tax bill Friday to extend current federal income tax withholding rates through Oct. 1. A spokesman said earlier Ford had not yet decided whether to approve the huge new compromise bill that Congress has passed to keep present individual and business tax cuts through 1977 and broadly revise tax laws. The bill Ford signed Friday was virtually identical to one he approved several weeks ago to extend the 1975 package of anti-recession tax cuts until Sept. 15 and give Congress time to complete action on the permanent tax reduction bill. Congress gave that measure final approval Thursday.

FEA accused of 'mini-Watergate'

While the Federal Energy Administration was warning Americans of severe natural gas shortages last winter, it had word from some experts that the shortages would be "small and manageable," Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., contended Friday. Dingell said FEA publicized the crisis aspect and suppressed information that contradicted it. His staff called the situation a "mini-Watergate" involving destroyed files. industry influence of the FEA, and possibly illegal lobbying. FEA Deupty Administrator John A. Hill told Dingell's energy subcommittee the FEA made some mistakes in its handling of the situation. But he denied FEA actions amounted to a "mini-Watergate."

U.S., Mexico reach accord on prisoners

The United States and Mexico have agreed to exchange texts of a proposed treaty that would allow Americans convicted of crimes in Mexico to return home to serve their jail terms, the State Dept. announced Friday. The proposed treaty wold also allow Mexicans convicted of U.S. crimes to serve their terms in Mexican jails. The proposed treaty arises out of protests of American prisoners in Mexico against alleged brutal treatment in Mexican jails.

Christians, Moslems clash in Lebanon

Christians and Moselm leftists clashed Friday near the Israeli border while President-elect Elias Sarkis, Palestinian guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat and a key Syrian official held truce talks near Beirut. A Palestine Liberation Organization spokesman confirmed that Moslem and Christian gunmen skirmished on a road four miles from Israel, just north of one of the frontier gates Israel has opened to Lebanese villagers in its "open border" policy.

Prayer meeting disrupted, 1 Arab killed

Israeli forces shot and killed one Arab and wounded at least one more during clashes with rock-throwing Moslems attending Friday prayers marking the end of Ramadan in he Old City of Jerusalem. The clashes erupted when several hundred chanting demonstrators broke away from a crowd of more than 40,000 Arabs attending prayers marking the last week of the month-long Moslem holiday of Ramadan. Police said security forces fired "warning shots" with M-16 rifles when the demonstrators began throwing stones at police and soldiers outside the hilltop compound of the Al Aqsa Mosque, one of Islam's holiest sites.

Protest arrival of Kissinger

PRETORIA, South Africa (UPI) — Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger, Friday carried black Africa's demands for majority rule in Rhodesia to the capital of segregated South Africa and proclaimed America's "responsibility" to help blacks achieve independence.

Kissinger's arrival for weekend talks with Prime Minister John Vorster touched off new race riots in the sprawling black ghetto of Soweto, 55 miles southwest of Johannesburg.

At least eight blacks, six of them children, were shot to death by South African riot police who fired into crowds of schoolchildren demonstrating against Kissinger and chased them back into their classrooms, clubbing them with rifle butts.

Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith also was flying to South Africa over the weekend and said he hoped to meet with Kissinger. However, Kissinger said on his way to Pretoria he had no plans to meet Smith.

"I stated last Saturday before I left Washington that I would meet Smith only under the condition that this was the final element in reaching a satisfactory conclusion," Kissinger said. "I do not have this knowledge today and therefore there is no basis for such a meeting."

Kissinger's plane made a wide detour on its flight from Lusaka, Zambia, to avoid Rhodesian airspace, flyingin stead over Mozambique, Portugal's former colony in eastern Africa. The United States does not recognize the Salisbury regime in Rhodesia.

Speaking before his departure from Zambia, Kissinger said the purpose of his talks with Vorster was to "try to move Rhodesia and Namibia (South West Africa) towards independence, majority rule, minority rights and a constitutional framework within which, as Pres. Kaunda said yesterday, all the races and all the peoples can live side by side in human dignity."

"I believe that a combination of factors has produced a situation where the United States alone in the world is in a position to make a contribution," Kissinger said "We have this responsibility, which we did not seek."

The secretary checked in immediately to the Burgerspark Hotel, Pretoria's only luxury hotel. The U.S. party reserved three floors of the hotel and a stairway leading to Kissinger's seventh floor suite was hastily sealed off by a brick wall.

Kissinger scheduled a meeting with Vorster at the premier's residence, Libertas, to continue over a working dinner.

4 journalists released from jail

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — A Superior Court judge Friday night released four Fresno Bee newsmen jailed for two weeks because they refused to disclose a news source.

After a daylong hearing, Judge Hollis Best ordered the four to spend five days behind bars but ruled the time already served would satisfy the sentence.

"The fact remains, however, that without legal or constitutional grounds they refused to answer questions the appeals court ruled they must answer," he said in explaining his five-day sentence.

"They are still in contempt of court and must be punished."

The four were greeted by the hugs and kisses of their families when they left the courthouse.

"I would hope the 21-month legal fight will notify the courts across the land so that they will become aware that newsmen will not reveal their sources," defendant George Gruner said.

The decision came after they told Best at the hearing that no amount of pressure could sway them from their position. Best had called the hearing on their motion for modification of sentence.

Before Best handed down his decision, he said the court was "well aware of the importance of its decision, not only to these four newsmen but to the news media throughout the nation."

Reporter Joe Rosato, one of the Bee staff members, told the court:

"I believe that to violate a confidential source would be the worst thing I or any other newsman could do professionally or ethically. There is no coercion that I could think of that would make me reveal a source who had been promised confidentially."

The other three defendants were Managing Editor George Gruner, ombudsman James Bort Jr. and reporter William Patterson. The four were jailed Sept. 3 for refusing to tell how they obtained a secret grand jury transcript.

Earlier, a psychiatrist testified that the four could not be expected to talk no matter how long they were held in jail. If they did so, he said, it would be "psychological suicide."

Archbishop favors ordination of women

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The Rt. Rev. Donald Coggan, Archbishop of Canterbury, said Friday he favored the ordination of women but would not celebrate communion with any irregularly ordained American women priests until their status is regularized.

Coggan, spiritual head of the world's 65 million Anglicans, urged U.S. Episcopalians to reconcile their divisions from the long and bitter struggle over women's ordination.

The action by the Episcopalians brought it in line with similar action by Anglican communions in Canada, New Zealand and Hong Kong but it applies only to the United States.

Canada is expected to ordain its first women in November and there has been some talk at the convention of the United States acting in concert with that date. In England, Coggan said, the debate over the issue was very "hot" and he said he believed the bishops there would be addressing the question again.

In separate but similar speeches to the church's House of Deputies and House of Bishops, Coggan said, "I have a feeling that out of this long debate that climaxed yesterday, music will come, love will come."

Asked at a news conference if he favored the ordination of women, Coggan said, "Yes."

Asked if he would celebrate the Eucharist with any of the 15 women whose irregular ordination plunged the church into its present crisis, Coggan said, "I should like to get the ordination of women in the U.S. regularized."

"Then, if I were in this country I would be happy to work alongside a woman priest," he said. He said the defiant ordinations were "done very unwisely."

Coggan said it was true that action by Anglican churches to ordain women to the priesthood would create additional obstacles in Anglican-Roman Catholic relations. But he said "there is considerable groundswell within the Catholic Church . . . who will welcome the decision you have made and welcome the leadership of the Anglican Church."

The leadership of the movement for ordination among Roman Catholics telegrammed the Episcopal General Convention Friday to congratulate it on approving priesting women.

"Our joy is doubled knowing that because of our ecumenical bond this work of the Spirit in your convention hastens the day when women will be ordained in our communion," the Roman Catholics said.

But opponents of women's ordination in the Episcopal Church remained defiant of the conventon action and held out the possibility they would leave the three million-member denomination.

"We will not acknowledge the power of any ecclesiastical authority to impose this illegitimate decision or its consequences upon the faithful," a coalition of 15 antiordination groups said. It called the convention action "null and void."

ACLU unit vows death penalty fight

The American Civil Liberties Union and a dozen other organizations announced Friday they have formed a coalition to oppose use of capital punishment in Illinois. "The State of Illinois has no death penalty now," said David . Hamlin of the ACLU, "and the coalition will work to guarantee that it never does." Hamlin said members of the coalition will testify Tuesday at an Illinois House judiciary subcommittee hearing on the issue. Since Illinois' death penalty law was struck down by the courts as unconstitutional, several bills proposing new death penalty legislation have been introduced in the Illinois General Assembly.

Daley to consider cop contract

Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley said Friday he would consider giving Chicago police a contract as long as it included a no-strike provison. Asked if he envisioned signing a police contract while he was mayor, Daley replied, "Well, there might conceivably be, if there's a compulsory arbitration clause and a no-strike provision." It is the closest Daley has yet to come in public to accepting the idea of a police collective bargaining contract.

The Teamsters Union is reportedly attempting to organize Chicago police and Daley said he has no objections to the union talking to the officers. "We negotiate and talk to every group that wants to come in, no matter who they are," he said. "They can be represented by anyone they want . . . but the right to do something and then doing it are two different things." Daley emphasized he does not believe police or fire fighters should have the right to strike.

Howlett backers fund Thompson

Chicago Teamsters leader Louis Peick, whose union has publicly backed Michael Howlett's gubernatorial bid, has donated $10,000 to Republican contender James R. Thompson. Peick, president of Teamsters Joint Council 25, presented the $10,000 check to Thompson during a meeting at the union's headquarters Sept. 7, Thompson's press aides said. Thompson aides said th contribution was made through Teamster Volunteers in Politics, the council's political arm. But they said the contribution did not carry a public endorsement of Thompson.

Earlier this year, Peick appeared at a major labor rally to urge Howlett's election. The Teamsters also participated in a $75,000 contribution made to Howlett during his successful Democratic primary campaign against Gov. Daniel Walker. The organized city labor movement is on record as backing Howlett.

Man sought in death fake found

A 32-year-old former stockbroker who tried to fake his death in Chicago was being held at the Hillsborough County, Fla., Jail on $25,000 bond along with three others on charges of conspiracy and interstate transport of a stolen vehicle. Estel M. Blevins and three other men were arrested by the FBI Thursday and charged with transporting a $200,000 earth moving machine from Monroe County, Georgia, to Largo, Fla. Chicago police have said they went to question Blevins for the mysterious case last March when he posed as his brother-in-law and identified the body of a man pulled out of the Chicago River as that of himself. Chicago authorities have no charges pending against Blevins, who had been allowed to move freely in the Clearwater, Fla. area in recent weeks because local police said they had no reason to pick him up.

Drawing to determine ballot spot

U.S. District Court Judge Bernard Decker Friday ordered DuPage County to hold a public drawing to determine how candidates' names will be placed on the November ballot. Decker made the ruling on a suit filed by Democrat Stephen J. Culliton, who is running for state's attorney. Culliton charged Republican candidates always get first place on the ballot in DuPage County.

Students demand Rockford tax vote

Led by cheerleaders, an estimated 300 students from Rockford West High School marched on the board of education Friday and theatened a school strike unless a new property tax referendum is called within 45 days. The marchers carried signs protesting the board's decision Monday to cancel all extracurricular activities, including sports, this year because of a lack of funds. The students said they delivered an ultimatum to the board demanding a new referendum within 45 days or they would stop attending classes.

Rockford voters rejected the last referendum Aug. 26 by a 2-1 margin. The referendum would have increased property taxes to 60 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Board members were believed in favor of a new referendum but had hoped to delay it until next year.

Senate meeting on school aid

Republican and Democratic senators worked Friday to sort out a confusing maze of school aid and a tax acceleration alternatives before the issues come up in a weekend special session showdown in the Illinois Senate. The Senate came in for a quick session Friday and moved to the passage stage five House bills dealing with the school-aid formula revision and Gov. Daniel Walker's $95 million tax speed-up plan. The battle over which versions of the bills to pass is expected to come today. Several senators said Friday that if floor discussion bogs down Saturday, the legislature will probably adjourn and come back after the Nov. 2 general election to tackle the two issues again.

Police chief seized in kidnaping

A small town police chief and a former deputy sheriff have been arrested on charges of kidnaping in the Earlville vandalism case, authorities said Friday. Police said they were still seeking a third man in the case of two Earlville youths who were taken to a wooded area and beaten with baseball bats because of their suspected involvement in vandalism. Arrested Thursday night and charged with two counts of aggravated kidnaping, aggravated battery and armed violence were John Marincic, 34, police chief of the LaSalle County town of Grand Ridge, and Leo Meagher Jr., Streator, a former La Salle County deputy.

Similar charges were placed last week against former Earlville Police Chief Owen Finnigan, 34. Authorities said Finnigan was suspected of planning the abduction but not participating in it.

State below normal in rainfall

Illinois land west of Springfield received only half the amount of rain betzeen April and July this year that it normally gets, University of Illinois meteorologists said Friday. Neil G. Towery and Stanley A. Changnon said a survey showed the entire state had a dry summer, but some areas were much worse off than others. The survey showed the area west of Springfield received only 8.1 inches of rain in the three-month period, or 49 per cent of what it usually gets. It was the driest the area has been in 35 years.

The north and central areas of Illinois all received between 12 and 14 inches of rain in amounts ranging from 78 per cent to 93 per cent of their usual totals.

Howlett vows lake water here

Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett Friday pledged to use his administration to bring Lake Michigan water to the suburbs if he is elected governor.

In a speech before the DuPage County Democratic Central Committee, Howlett, the Democratic candidate for governor, pledged, "in the Howlett administration we will work to bring Lake Michigan water to suburbs that will need it before the shortage becomes critical."

Howlett also used the forum in the heavily Republican county to blame the GOP for blocking a number of programs. He outlined the accomplishments of Democratic administrations in his speech.

Howlett's statement put him on record, along with Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson, in pledging to seek a Lake Michigan water allocation for the suburbs.

Thompson told the Northwest Municipal Conference last week that the question of additional water diversion from the lake should be reopened.

"It might also help other areas of the state by allowing additional water to flow into the Illinois River helping to clean it up," Thompson told the area officials.

Jicha, of Palatine, will work with Paul Johnson, campaign manager, David Jenkins, research and statistics; Harold Harvey, finance chairman; Kae Rairdin, special events; and Sandy Carey, scheduling.

A number of political candidates have announced the addition of supporters to head various aspects of their campaign.

Republican congressional candidate Samuel H. Young named Edgar D. Jannotta of Kenilworth and Frances L. Dawson of Evanston to head his newly formed Executive cabinet.

Democratic Illinois Senate Candidate Marshall Rothman has named Clifford Leverence to head his campaign. Leverence ran for the state senate in 1972 and is president of ABC-TV Photo Productions.

"We have not had a chance to question him," Leonard said. "We don't know what the priorities will be," he said of the charges pending against Williams. "The authorities that have warrants out against him will file detainers."

AMONG THOSE will be the Los Angles Police Dept. which has a murder warrant against Williams for the abduction-slaying of Evelyn Axelrod, 58, the widowed owner of a Sherman Oaks, Calif., trucking firm.

Mrs. Axelrod's bloodstained 1974 Pontiac Firebird was found April 12 at Golf and New Wilke roads by Rolling Meadows police. Her body has not been found.

Schaumburg police also have charges pending against Williams in connection with the abduction of Dale C. Fridlund of Itasca and the attempted armed robbery of the Globe-Hoppers gift shop in Woodfield.

Schaumburg Police Chief Martin J. Conroy said Friday charges of unlawful restraint, armed robbery and attempted armed robbery and a $175,000 bond are pending against Williams.

Williams also has been sought for the abduction of Muriel Fulton, a Glencoe woman abducted from her home April 15 and forced to withdraw $6,000 from her downtown bank account for her abductor.

BOTH MRS. FRIDLUND and Mrs. Fulton were released unharmed.

Leonard said in addition to federal kidnapping charges, Williams could face further federal charges of interstate transportation of stolen vehicles if he survives.

Williams had been known to local police two years ago as the "cat burglar" who robbed apartments in Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights before his capture by Mount Prospect police in June 1974.

He was listed as an escapee from a Chicago prison work release center March 1, 1976, only weeks before he was scheduled to be paroled for his conviction for the string of suburban apartment burglaries.

Just play — and have a good time: Benny Goodman

The chandeliers hung quietly from the expansive Victorian ceiling inside the spacious Grand Ballroom. They would not miss one single moment of the glorious musician who heard not simple notes and chords, but something more.

This wolld be their own private concert. No matter that it had been termed a rehearsal. Water glasses came to attention and dinner rolls perked up atop their plates. Seldom does such an accomplished master of the arts move among them.

"He just got here," the woman said excitedly one evening this week outside the Conrad Hilton Hotel's Grand Ballroom. "He's inside." She pointed toward the large mirrored doors which had swung open to permit the great master his unassuming entry.

Benny Goodman smiled kindly from behind his black horn-rimmed glasses. He stopped to greet his six musicians, the drummer, the sax man, the pianist, the guitarist, the bass player and the trumpet man.

THEY WERE THE luckiest of all. They had been asked to accompany Benny Goodman, the clarinetist, at his special performance during Wednesday evening's Hull House Assn. benefit banquet.

Benny moved in no rush. The limousine brought him to rehearsal one-half hour late. Rehearsal. How many have there been during the past six decades? It is not important when Benny arrives one-half hour late.

Benny approached table No. 7, slid a chair along the plush Grand Ballroom carpet and sat down. The clarinet case rested upon his knees. Benny, the 8th of an immigrant tailor's 11 children who grew up on Chicago's near West side, flicked open the claient case.

His famous dancing figners reached into the black case. One by one the instrument's parts were retrieved. Benny placed them together. Now his clarinet would dance again.

Today

Mike Klein's people

THAT IS WHEN the TV newsman sat down near Benny. He mentined a lives newsspot that his station would air in just a few minutes. That did not ruffle the old master. What was one more interview among thousands?

"Are you playing anywhere now, sir, anywhere near that we can promote?" the TV newsman asked.

"Here," Benny said.

"No, I mean . . .," the TV Newsman started again.

The old master stopped that talk. "I don't play any steady jobs," Benny said. He wanted to discuss other things. "Boy, that section over near the Ritz-Carlton sure has changed," Benny said.

The old master and the TV newsman shared little in common. One lives at any pace he chooses these days. He has nothing to prove. The world has worshipped his dancing clarinet for six decades. The TV newsman keeps one eye glued to his wristwatch.

BENNY MENTIONED a few landmarks in the Chicago neighborhoods that he remembered, back when Benny received clarinet instruction at Jane Addams' Hull House.

Benny surveyed the little stage where he would perform his dancing notes for the Hull House benefit dinner guests. They he turned toward the television crew. "You got any stage people here to help us?" Bennyasked.

Cal Collins sat picking his guitar. He would sit to Benny's left during the performance. Benny chose to move Cal's amplifier. He bent down and pulled the electronic box.

This was a rehearsal more for press benefit than anything else. A few people wanted to visit with Benny Goodman. Another television crew arrived. Benny and his makeshift band whipped through three quick numbers.

It was during the third section that Benny moved off-stage. He walked out among the rolls and water glasses. Benny started to wave his right arm overhead. He wanted the musicians to stop playing. Something did not sound correct.

"Will you turn those microphones down, way down, please. Practically don't need them," Benny told the sound man, who watched from the Grand Ballroom balcony.

"LET ME HEAR the piano alone," Benny said.

John Aunch rippled the keys. "Can you just touch them?" Benny shouted at the sound man.

"They're off," the sound man said.

"Well, touch them," Benny said. "Go ahead."

Benny insisted upon that effect. "You got it just touched open, right? That's good. Leave it that way. In case we get in trouble, you can turn it up."

This laster perhaps 10 minutes. Then the old master had heard enough. "Thank you, boys," Benny said.

Hull House people told Benny he would go on stage at 9:05 p.m. That allowed Benny three hours to relax in his Ritz-Carlton suite north on Michigan Avenue.

Benny's dancing clarinet had released its final note at this rehearsal. It was broken down and returned to the black case. Benny walked off-stage.

CONNIE KAY, Benny's drummer this night, sat at a nearby table. Benny walked toward Connie. "Come here got to talk with you," Benny told the man who followed him.

The two men went off and sat down at a table where their discussion would not be overheard. A man walked up near the stage. He said that Benny remembered Connie from a gig they played together more than 10 years ago.

"They all played that one with Louie Armstrong," the man said. "Benny didn't recognize him until he walked off-stage and got a look at the guy's long hair."

Benny spoke only a few moments with Connie. He took the drummer's business card and slipped it inside his suit jacket pocket. The two men parted.

"Now what do you want?" Benny asked the newspaper reporter.

"JUST A COUPLE questions," the reporter said. He began to walk toward a table. "Would you like to sit down?"

"This is just fine," Benny said. He leaned against the portable stage.

The reporter began to ask something vague about Benny's career and the satisfaction it must have brought. Somehow, a mention of famous novelist Ernest Hemingway got lost in the vague question.

"Well, I don't know anything about Hemingway," Benny told the reporter. "That's your problem. Anything else you want to know?"

Benny started to leave the reporter behind. But what about advice; did he have any advice?

The grand old musician, master of the dancing clarinet, smiled. Benny Goodman raised his right arm to shoulder height, as if to conduct the band.

"Just play," Benny said, "and have a good time."

A few soft notes danced from Benny Goodman's famous clarinet.

Village to seek U.S. funds for new police building

Arlington Heights officials are hopeful a $2 billion public works act recently passed by Congress will provide the necessary funding for a new public safety building.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said Friday he expects the village to formally apply for funding under the Local Public Works Capital Development and Investment Act as soon as appropriations are announced by the U.S. House of Representatives.

The $2 billion program is aimed at reducing nationwide unemployment. A veto by President Ford has been overridden by both houses of Congress.

Hanson has urged the village board to authorize construction of a new public safety building because of insufficient space for police hearquarters in the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Although the board has not made a decision on whether to go ahead with the project, it has narrowed the field of possible architects to two firms.

THE BOARD HAS delayed making a decision since July so the village's new police chief can be consulted on the design of a new building. Robert Derks of Reston, Va., was hired last week and will take command of the police department Oct. 18.

The question of hiring an architect for the project will be placed on the Oct. 4 village board agenda, Hanson said.

A study conducted this summer by two members of the police department recommended the construction of a 50,000-square-foot building on village-owned land directly east of the municipal building on Sigwalt Street. The estimated cost of the building is $2.5 million, Hanson said.

Hanson said he hopes the board will not delay approving a new building because construction costs are increasing and the effectiveness of the police department is being hampered by cramped quarters.

If Arlington Heights is successful in its bid for the government grant, 100 per cent funding will be provided, as projects up to $5 million may be funded by the grant.

THE VILLAGE'S application will be judged on areawide unemployment.

"The chief purpose of the program is to alleviate high unemployment," James Holzwart, administrative assistant for the village, said.

Holzwart said the village already has obtained its application, but cannot submit it to the Economic Development Administration, U.S. Dept. of Commerce, until Congress appropriates the funds.

"The Economic Development Administration has no idea when that will be. They said this week it may be as late as January," Holzwart said.

Eatery robbed; 11 locked in freezer

by DAVE IBATA

Des Plaines police are seeking three armed bandits who robbed patrons at a city restaurant of $1,407 cash and $930 in jewelry before locking 11 of them in a freezer early Friday morning.

Police said the robbers, armed with two 4-inch blue-steel revolvers and a pump shotgun, entered Arthur's Restaurant and Lounge, 1571 Elmhurst Rd., at 12:40 a.m. Friday and ordered patrons in the bar to put up their hands.

A Mount Prospect man, believing the stickup to be a joke, tried to push aside the barrel of the shotgun, and one of the robbers struck him down from behind, police said.

One of the robbers acted as a lookout, while another held the customers, bartender and restaurant owner Arthur Janis at gunpoint and a third stripped them of cash, jewelry, watches and credit cards, police said.

ONE OF THE robbers also rifled the cash register at the bar, taking an undetermined amount of money, police said.

Victims of the robbery were from Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Naperville, Addison and Laguna Nigeiee, Calif., police said. An Arlington Heights man reportedly lost $1,300 cash in vacation money.

The bandits used first aide tape to bind Janis and the Mount Prospect man, and left them on the floor near the bar. The others were ordered into a freezer in the restaurant's kitchen, police said. The robbers then fled.

Janis freed himself and called police at 1:16 a.m. A search for the trio proved fruitless.

The injured Mount Prospect man was transported to Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, where he received stitches to close a scalp wound and was released.

Police described the robbers as three adult males who spoke with Southern accents, and stood from 5-feet 11-inches to 6-feet 2-inches tall. One reportedly wore a brown wig and a fake mustache; another wore a ski mask, a white denim jacket, slacks and a multi-colored print shirt; and a third wore a white ski sweater with a pine-tree design across the chest.

Dance tonight to aid mental unit

"You, The Night and the Music" is the theme of a ball at 9 p.m. Saturday sponsored by the Friends of the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center. The event will be in the Grand Court of Woodfield Shopping Center, Golf and Meacham roads, Schaumburg.

Proceeds will be used to help construct a building for the center at the northeast corner of Rohlwing and Nerge roads on two acres donated through Elk Grove Village by SBL Corp. The site is just east of the dividing line between the townships.

The cost of the building is estimated at $660,000. The center has applied for $360,000 in federal aid for the project.

Both townships have pledged $100,000 each for the center and the Friends have agreed to raise $70,000.

Tickets for the fund-raiser are $17.50 per person.

Music will be provided by Frankie Masters and his orchestra, and a buffet will be served from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m.

For reservations or information contact the center, 593-6690, or ticket chairmen Nancy Fulton, 439-4073, and Donna Lundell, 885-9275.

Supreme Court to hear church-state case soon

A case involving work and worship is shaping up as the Supreme Court's major church-state issue for the next term.

The case, Parker Seal Co. v. Cummins, will be argued in the Surpeme Court sometime this fall.

The primary issue involved in the case is the extent to which an employe may refuse to work on certain days because of religious beliefs.

Paul Cummins, a supervisor at the Parker Seal Co., Berea, Ky., joined the World Wide Church of God, a "sabbatarian" religion which prohibits its members from working from sundown on Friday to sundown on Saturday.

AFTER JOINING the church, Cummins refused to work on Saturdays and eventually was discharged by Parker Seal.

The case has attracted widespread attention among religious groups, particularly those interested in religious liberty and church-state issues.

Both Americans United for Separation of Church and State and a coalition of 12 national Jewish organizations and 100 local Jewish community councils have filed friend-of-the-court briefs on Cummins' behalf.

In the suit, Parker Seal is challenging he constitutionality of a 1972 amendment to the Civil Rights Act which requires employes to "reasonably accommodate to an employe's or prospective employe's religious observance or practice without undue hardship on the conduct of the employer's business."

PARKER SEAL is arguing that this requirement violates the First Amendment by advancing religion to the joint of "establishment" and entangling the government in religion.

Both the Jewish coalition and Americans United, in their separate briefs, take issue with the company's position.

The law, the Jewish groups said, does no more than "protect the religious freedom of those who observe a day other than Sunday as their holy day of rest."

Americans United said the law did not violate the Constitution's anti-establishment clause because the constitutional prohibition against establishment applies to governmental action, not conduct involving private parties.

COUNTRY COUSINS go modular: There's a new group called "Hermitage Hill" by Paoli Chair Co. It's fashioned for those who like the versatility of contemporary modular concepts, but hate to leave their country style behind.

Your home

by Carolyn Murray

Conversation 'pit' goes country

It was bound to happen. A conversation grouping or "pit" for lovers of country-style furniture!

The important thing about a new concept is that we should swing with an idea and then let it work for us. Instead of being victimized by a fad, we can afford a wait-and-see attitude. If a new concept makes any sense for our time, it makes sense even when translated into styles that are compatible to our personal lives.

Take a look at today's illustration as a case in point. We show the new "Hermitage Hill" group from Paoli Chair Co. And the firm's president, W. Sherman Heazlitte, had it created especially for those wanting the versatility of modular seating while still living in a less-than-contemporary environment.

It's really a pleasing look. The nicely finished wood frames are revealed on the corner sections and the individual sections.

The same gently curved motif flows around the base of seat and ottoman units, creating a nice feeling of continuity. Even the side tables have this matching detail attuned at the same height — a good design touch.

Heazlitte also explains that the cushions are all free-floating. That means they may be lifted from the frames and completely slipcovered or reupholstered to more than "double the life" of the furniture.

Square aimed at first-time buyer

When planners at United Development Company sat down to develop Independence Square, the third residential neighborhood of New Century Town in north suburban Vernon Hills, they decided they wanted to design a series of homes aimed at the first-time home buyer.

Now, just weeks after the models officially opened, 30 of the new homes have been sold — 26 to first-time buyers.

"We are finding that the moderate cost of Independence Square homes and the excellent financing arrangements we are able to offer is a winning combination," said sales manager Pete Fleming.

Two-and three-bedroom courthomes, priced from $34,990 to $40,990 are being built in 16 courthome buildings. Each building will contain six homes — two two-and three-bedroom ranch designs and four two-and three-bedroom townhomes — making a total of 96 of the new homes.

A COURTHOME CAN BE purchased for as little as 5 per cent down. Mortgage financing was available at 7.5 per cent interest rate for purchasers signing contracts by Sept. 10. Private mortgage insurance is required with minimum downpayment.

"This financing arrangement can make home ownership possible for a person who hasn't been able to build up equity for a large downpayment through the previous ownership of a home," Fleming said.

Although most of the Independence Square buyers are young married couples in the 24-to-40 age bracket, three buyers are over 50. "Several of the Courthome buyers also have children," Fleming said. "So far we have about eight children who will be living in Independence Square."

The first Courthomes will be ready for occupancy this month. Along with the two-bedroom raised ranch and two-and three-bedroom townhome designs, "we are also introducing an optional three-bedroom raised ranch Courthome," Fleming said. "It will occupy slightly more space as the two-bedroom raised ranch, but at the buyer's option we will include an additional bedroom and bath. This will allow buyers to select a three-bedroom home in either a two-story or single-level design.

"The name Independence Square was given to this third neighborhood of New Century Town in commemoration of the nation's bicentennial celebration this year — and because of the degree of independence these homes will afford their owners," Fleming said.

THE NEW HOME designs being offered in Independence Square are in keeping with a plan to provide a variety of homes and price ranges at New Century Town. The first residential neighborhood of the community, Hawthorn Square, consists of 107 townhomes and garden homes. Republic Square, the second neighborhood, is made up of 90 townhomes.

In Independence Square, the architectural design of the buildings will be Colonial, English Tudor and Bucks County. Three models will be offered: the Williamsburg, the Concord and the Lexington.

The Williamsburg is a two-bedroom, one-bath raised ranch home all on one level. This is the model that is now being offered in an optional three-bedroom, two-bath version as well.

Both versions have a ground floor private foyer which can be reached either from outdoors or through the private garage. Buyers of this model can choose an optional cathedral ceiling at extra cost.

The two-bedroom Williamsburg has an 18-by-16-foot living room, with an adjacent 11½-by-7½-foot dining area that includes a sliding glass door leading to the balcony. The kitchen measures 11-by-7½-feet and includes a breakfast area.

The 11-by-16½-foot master bedroom includes a large walk-in closet. A second bedroom measuring 11-by-10½-feet can be used as a den or guest room. A full bath is convenient to both bedrooms. The two-bedroom version is priced from $34,990.

The three-bedroom Williamsburg, priced from $38,990, has a 15-by-10½-foot living room with an adjacent dining room measuring 10½by-8-feet. It, too, has a sliding glass door leading to the balcony.

THE KITCHEN IS 8-by-7½-feet. A hallway from the living room-dining area leads to the bedroom wing of this home. A centrally situated bath is convenient for guests. The second bath is connected to the master bedroom, which is 11-by-11 feet. The second bedroom is 9-by-10½, and the third bedroom measures 9-by-9½-feet.

The Lexington and the Concord are the names of the two townhomes available in Independence Square. The Lexington is a 3-bedroom, 1½-bath unit; the Concord has two bedrooms with 1½ baths. The downstairs areas of both homes follow the same format.

A private entry foyer with a guest closet opens onto an 18½-by-13-foot living room. A second entry foyer providing direct access from the garage also has a guest closet. Sliding glass doors in the dining area provide access to the patio area.

A powder room on the main level is convenient to the kitchen, living room, and garage.

The upstairs area of the three-bed room Lexington model has a central hallway leading to all three bedrooms and the full bath. The 11-by-14½-foot master bedroom has "his and her" closets situated adjacent to a bathroom entryway.

The second bedroom measures 12½-by 10½-feet and includes a six-foot wardrobe closet. The third bedroom is 9½-by-10½-feet. Price of the Lexington in phase two is $40,500. The Lexington has been sold out in the first phase of development, but orders will be accepted on the second phase.

The two-bedroom Concord model has a common hallway upstairs leading to both bedrooms and the full bath.

The 11-by-16-foot main bedroom has a 6-by-5-foot walk-in closet, plus an additional 3-foot wardrobe closet. The 10-by-9-foot second bedroom has a four foot closet. Price of the Concord is $35,990.

EACH OF THE homes at Independence Square includes central air conditioning, an attached garage, storage, oven and range, dishwasher, disposer, carpeting, storm windows and screens, patio or balcony and landscaping.

Ask Andy

Many skills needed to make map

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Alexander Cowherd, 7, of Duluth, Minn., for his question:

HOW DO THEY MAKE MAPS?

It takes a great many skilled and trained persons to produce an accurate map. The finished product represents a great deal of time and careful observation of some portion of the earth's surface. Today many maps are made from other maps, but since towns and cities are constantly growing and new countries are emerging, there is always a continual need for the revision and changing of old maps.

To make a new map the experts gather exact data about the area to be mapped. Surveyors use precise instruments to measure distances from one point to another. Other information may be supplied by geographers, geodesists and even a geologist or two.

Of course, a great deal of information is obtained from aerial photography and even satellites. Numerous pictures are taken with special cameras. A person called a photogrammetrist can use these pictures to make precise and accurate drawings.

After all the information is gathered and organized, it is given to a cartographer. His job is to plan the map and determine what is to be included and what is to be left out. The information included depends greatly on what kind of map it is. If it is a map of a city, it would show all the streets, schools, parks and other important places. If it is a state map, however, it would not show individual streets, but it would have all the major highways, towns and cities.

As the map is drawn, a draftsman adds the symbols necessary to make the map easy to read and understand. A small portion of the map, usually in the corner, is called the legend. Here each symbol is defined. Now the map is ready to be copied and printed.

There are many different kinds of maps and many different mapmakers. Each type of map gives different information and sometimes requires unique methods of preparation. Regardless of what the map shows, however, it all begins with accurate information.

BIG BUSINESS

"Does this mean you're not willing to cooperate with production?"

Computers, sense provide security

Old-fashioned common sense plus knowledge of theft using computers combine to provide businessmen a sense of security, law enforcement officials say.

Police and prosecutors recently discussed security from physical intrusion and computer invasion for corporations at a seminar on white-collar crime sponsored by the Chicago Assn. of Commerce and Industry.

Firms face two types of thieves: Those from the outside who penetrate a building's perimeter, and those on the inside who undermine security from within, Sgt. George Murphy, ness crime prevention officer of the the Chicago Police Dept. said.

Take a good, close look at your security — your fences, gates, loading docks, doors and roofs, Murphy told 100 executives at the Pick-Congress hotel in downtown Chicago Wednesday afternoon.

Murphy said executives concerned with preventing burglaries should ask these questions:

- Is the fence surrounding my property undamaged or sound?
- Are all entrances to my plant locked or monitored against strangers?
- At night, can a passing police patrol see my loading dock from the street? In other words, do I have sufficient lighting?
- Could thieves use shrubbery around the plant — for example, a tree which provides access to the roof of the building— to gain entry?

Also take a close look at the loading dock, Murphy said, to see how freely outsiders such as truck drivers may enter the building. Once inside, drivers may talk to employes and find out what sort of goods have been delivered to the dock — and could be easy prey for theft.

Put a pay telephone on the loading dock, install a soft-drink machine, even build new restrooms, if necessary, near the delivery area, Murphy said. Be certain that for whatever reason or excuse, strangers are not allowed inside the main building.

To curb inside thefts, businesses should write a crime prevention policy dealing with access to the building and inventories, written in "everyday" English so that all employes, whether business PhDs or office boys, can understand it, Murphy said.

Then enforce the policy impartially — with absolutely no exceptions, even for upper-level management, Murphy said. And don't be afraid to take legal action against employes caught stealing, Murphy said.

EXECUTIVES also should take precautions against thieves who use computers for ill gain, Nathaniel E. Kossack, consultant of the Economic Crime Project, National District Attorneys Assn., said.

Computers, by themselves, can break laws, Kossack said. "The man behind the machine is the perpetrator," Kossack explained. He criticized employes who bundle a computer operator and his keyboard off to an obscure corner of the company, as though fearful of the technological gremlins of the electronic brain.

Computer operators consequently "operate on their own — just as freewheeling as they please," Kossack said.

A computer operator may have access to payroll documents, invoice orders, inventory receipts, even trade secrets, Kossack said. A computer program alone could be a top secret item for a company, he said.

"IT'S MUCH EASIER to embezzle by computer than by a set of books," Kossack said. "You've got one thing going for you: Nothing is visible. With books, you've got to sit on them; a computer can be made to forget."

Corporations often place all their eggs in one basket of stockpiling records in a single computer's memory bank — and a tornado, flood, sabotage, or industrial spy's prying eyes could spell disaster for such a firm, Kossack said.

Kossak illustrated the simplicity of computer bamboozling:

In the case of a Los Angeles, Calif., insurance firm, an enterprising young firm peddled mutual shares with its insurance policies. The recession of the early 1970s, however, meant hardship for the scheme, and management of the firm used their computer to set up phoney policies for non-existent persons, complete with inflated mutual funding records.

All seemed legitimate on the surface — until investigators discovered the firm's astonishing success really was nothing more than a glimmer in a computer programmer's eye.

Companies may safeguard their computers, Kossack said, by:

- Never allowing programmers to enter a computer room alone.
- Restrict access to the computer room.
- Supervise all major transactions conducted by computer.
- Hire skilled, dedicated professionals to operate the computers — always remember the temptation to steal.
- Guard data lines that connect a central computer with a remote keyboard to prevent electronic eavesdropping.

'Careless manager leads to crime'

Careless management policies lead to white-collar crimes, and too often corporations leave an open door for thieves, security officials agree.

Harlan Litteral, postal inspector in charge of the Chicago Division of the U.S. Postal Inspection Service, cites techniques used in white-collar crimes:

- A mail-order firm allowed one person to handle all orders and shipments. The unscrupulous employe printed his own invoices and had them mailed to a post office box he had opened in another city.
- A scrap metal dealer paid for shipments by weight. Truck drivers parked their loaded rigs at a weigh station, and a clerk recorded the weights on a ticket, which we handed to the driver. After dumping his load, the driver brought the truck back to be weighed empty. Loaded minus empty weight equalled the load of scrap, and a check was made out for the driver.

Inevitably, drivers obtained blank weight tickets. After driving away from the first weighing, they tossed out the valid ticket and wrote out their own inflated figures.

- An insurance company allowed one adjuster to adjust claims, issue drafts and maintain files and records. The adjuster entered names of fictitious accident victims, and issued compensatory checks to bank accounts of relatives.
- A branch manager of a manufacturer handled payroll accounts, disbursements and records. The manager submitted names of nonexistent persons, and on payday the central office obligingly sent their checks. The manager pocketed $275,000 before his employer caught on.

Cut work time key strike issue: UAW

The United Auto Workers charged Friday that the Ford Motor Co. forced a nationwide strike when it forced to budge over the key contract issue of reducing work time because it wants to keep making "super high profits." In a lengthy letter to local leaders in the third day of the walkout, UAW Pres. Leonard Woodcock and Vice President Ken Bannon said that reduction in work time must be accomplished in this year's auto industry negotiations.

Both the UAW and Ford said the union's demand was the key element in forcing the walkout by 170,000 workers at 11:59 p.m. Tuesday. Most observers predict the strike will continue into October with settlement before midmonth unlikely. Woodcock and Bannon said the union's goal was to create jobs, because if the private sector of the economy does not meet that responsibility, it will force the total problem on government.

Ford reported a $442 million profit in the second quarter of the year, 313 per cent higher than a year ago and the highest for any three-month period in the No. 2 automaker's history.

The union issued its statement following two days of "exploratory meetings" with top Ford officials in hopes of speeding formal negotiations when they resume early next week.

State chamber elects president

Amos E. Beuttell of Hebron, president of Crown Industrial Products Co., in McHenry County, was elected chairman of the board Friday of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce for the coming year. Buetell succeeds George S. Trimble, president and chief executive office of Bunker Ramo Corp., Oak Brook.

Six vice chairmen representing different regions of the state were named to one year terms. They were: Lloyd C. Farquhar, president, East St. Louis Castings Co., East St. Louis; Edward R. Healy, president, Northern Illinois Water Corp., Champaign; Edward W. Ruhe, president, Brass Group, Olin Corp., East Alton; George A. Lorenzen, president, Dohrn Transfer Co., Rock Island; Philip A. Schaack, president, Illinois Seven-Up Bottling Co., Joliet; O. C. Davis, president, Peoples Gas Co., Chicago.

Smoke detectors criticized

Smoke detectors' viewed by safety officials as a key factor in cutting into the nearly 7,000 fire deaths in American homes every year, are under attack for alleged radiation dangers. Ralph Nader's Health Research Group told the Nuclear Regulatory Commission this week it should ban ionization type devices which contain the radioactive metal americium because of the chance that radiation could escape. The group proposed that all existing units not yet sold should be recalled and consumers having such devices in their homes should return them to the place of purchase.

Richard Cunningham, assistant director for fuel cycles and materials at the commission, disputed the demand: "They're talking about a microcurie of americium. If you were sitting 25 centimeters away from a device for 40 hours a week you would get one millirem (of radiation) in one year. If you take a round trip airplane flight from Washington to California you get five millirems per flight. The natural background radiation in Washington is 105 to 115 millirems per year. So you're really talking about a very small amount."

Dow up 7.15 in heavy trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street institutions, anticipating lower interest rates and a brighter economy, went on a buying stampede Friday to drive prices broadly higher in the heaviest trading in six months on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a n 8 . 6 4-point winner Thursday, climbed another 7.15 to 995.10, giving it a 6.74-point gain for the week. Analysts were impressed the market faltered only slightly early in the week in the face of the news of a strike against Ford Motor Co. and problems in the steel industry.

The volume of 28,270,000 shares was the heaviest since 32,605,470 were traded March. 24. Thursday's turnover was 19,620,000.

The rally was widespread with the NYSE common stock index gaining 0.48 to 56.69 and the average price of a common share increasing 29 cents. Advances routed declines, 1,092 to 400, among the 1,909 issues crossing the tape.

$160 million electric car program OKd in senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted Friday to enact over President Ford's veto, a $160 million federal program aimed at producing an energy-stingy electric car.

The Senate's 53-20 vote completed a congressional overide of the veto. The vote was four more than the two-thirds margin needed. The House voted Thursday 307-101 to override.

The bill would spend $160 million in five fiscal years. It would start with a year's test of the present technology. Then performance standards would be written.

The federal government would let contracts for 2,500 cars, to lease to local governments and individuals for testing in actual traffic. Small businesses would be assured a share of the contracts to make the cars.

BY FOUR YEARS after passage of the bill, 5,000 more vehicles of advanced design would be leased similarly.

After that, private industry would take over, making and marketing whatever vehicles the demand seemed to support.

"Here is one program that fits right in with any hope we have to conserve energy in the future," Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., told the Senate. "The electric vehicle can provide the public a nonpolluting vehicle that does not depend on petroleum fuels."

Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., called the federal program "a waste of the taxpayers' money."

PRIVATE INDUSTRY can develop the cars and "if the cars are a success, everybody will want to buy them. There is all the incentive in the world. There is no good reason why traditional private enterprise values . . . cannot properly handle this."

Illinois Senators Adlai Stevenson and Charles Percy voted for the measure.

Handcrafted glass shade now collector's item

Collecting
with Grace Carolyn

A few years ago I was advised by Darrah L. Roberts, author of "Art Glass Shades" and "Collecting Art Nouveau Shades" that this area of collecting was one overlooked by most people. Vases, bowls, candlesticks and other forms, he thought, were priced so high in Tiffany, Steuben and other art glass names that the shades were real "bargains."

I am sure that his ideas of pricing have changed, just as mine have, in the meantime, for shades today are commanding prices right along with the other pieces — maybe not quite, but almost.

It's difficult to figure the mystique of all this. A shade, I suppose, is just a shade; can't be used for anything except standing in a cabinet; can't hold water, candles or flowers; and is actually a part of something else — a lamp or a sconce or ceiling fixture. Still, the glass is just as beautiful, the handcraftsmanship just as detailed. Obviously, more and more people have realized this, and shades have escalated right along with everything else.

HERE I GO again, with my "good old days" stories, but the lamp pictured was purchased at a conducted house sale in Arlington Heights about 10 years ago for $5. The two shades, or orange iridescent art glass, are signed "Quezal," a famed name. The lower left shade is one of a pair of signed Steubens with leaf and vine decoration and raised applied glass threads called "Spider Webbing." All these shades are in the Art Nouveau style. The typical Art Deco shade, lower right, is one of a pair of ivory-tinted glass with green-printed decor, in a vaguely Oriental design, not quite as elderly nor as valuable as the others. The two shown on the lamp are from 1925, as is the Steuben. The Art Deco is probably from the mid-'30s. Although the Quezal shades seem almost too large for the small pressed glass lamp base, they are original with it.

I didn't take Mr. Roberts' advice to buy them up a few years ago, but I should have. I paid a total of $20 for the six shades mentioned (all of these are in pairs), but today the same six would cost around $200 or more. It's not that I didn't see any of them for reasonable prices; almost every dealer had a few. I think my reason for passing up so many good buys in years gone by is that I like everything and just couldn't restrict my purchases to any one collectible. (Probably a very bad policy. I advise others to specialize, but I never do as I say.)

MR. ROBERTS remarks in his book Collecting Art Nouveau Shades:

"High quality, iridescent, Art Nouveau is accepted as antique even though the oldest piece would be only seventy-five years old. A good portion of the glass is already in museums since curators have realized the magnitude of the worldwide contribution it makes to the arts and to glassmaking . . . With each passing day more people are recognizing these shades and the similar glass in other forms as a national treasure. There is none finer.

"The glass workers of that period were master craftsmen who labored for only a fraction of what would be considered a fair wage today. Many of the secrets needed to duplicate this glass died with the workers so there is no record of the exact techniques used in making many of the pieces . . ."

Such items as art glass shades, of course, would not fit into a primitive decor, nor are they the type of antiques one would care to have standing about where little children and large dogs frolic. But they are an area of collecting which appeals to a growing number of persons, so don't overlook any beautiful shade if you should happen upon one at a garage sale. They are usually six to eight inches in height, and the scew-on type bases are about three inches. They were made for electric light fixtures, and many may still be seen in homes built during the '20s and '30s, if they haven't "modernized." Many times a shade is not signed by a maker, if found singly, for perhaps only one of the four or five from a center fixture was signed originally. Signed shades bring more than unsigned.

Mr. Roberts and many other have turned a "shady" hobby most respectable.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Immunity to flu may eventually lose effect

In 1918 in my second year of life I was severely stricken with what was known as the Spanish influenza. According to my mother the only medication prescribed by the doctor was Old Overholt 100 proof bonded rye whiskey.

After a few days I appeared to go into convulsions and my mother sent for my grand-aunt for assistance. Grand-aunt, after listening to my babbling for a few seconds, promptly diagnosed my condition with the words, "That baby is drunk."

My question is, to what extent did my bout with Spanish flu provide me with immunity against the swine virus?

Immunity does not last forever. Adults sometimes have a second attack with some of the childhood diseases. You may have some immunity, but the variables are too great to take a risk. You could have had some other respiratory illness or your immunity may no longer be effective. So my advice to all is to go ahead and take the flu shots. It could even save your life.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-1, The Cold, Flu Group, to give you more information on the types of flu and respiratory illnesses that exist. Others who want this information can send a long-stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Why does my nose get stopped up when I go to bed? I have no trouble when I am up but do have dripping and itching. At night I wake up with difficulty breathing because of my nose and can't get back to sleep. Sometimes I only get two or four hours of sleep.

I'm 86 years old, very active, drive a car and I do almost any kind of work. I can live with this, but it bugs me that neither my doctor nor I can do anything about it. All I get from sleeping pills is a very bad hangover the next day so I don't take them. Anything you can do to help will be fine.

As you may know ankles tend to swell during the day and feet and ankles are largest at the end of the day. That is because blood runs downhill from the heart and increases the pressure in the lower part of the body. The fluid then leaks out into the tissues causing swelling.

What does that have to do with your nose? When you are upright during the day the nose is above the heart and the pressure in the veins and arteries to the head is diminished. This means you are less likely to have swelling in the soft tissues such as the lining of the nose. So the nose is naturally more open during the day and tends to be stuffy at night. When you lie down, the pressure in the arteries and veins to the head increases and contributes to swelling of the nasal lining.

You may also have a mild allergy, perhaps even to your pillow or bedding or house dust.

I know what you mean about a hangover from sleeping pills. You might ask your doctor to try you on Benadryl. It is an antihistaminic and will help to protect you from any allergic response you might have and help you sleep without giving you a hangover the next day.

Refrigerator dollar bill test not valid

Dear Dorothy: Recently I read that a sure way to check the gasket on a refrigerator door was to close the door on a dollar bill — that if the bill could be pulled out the door was leaking cold air and taking in warm air. Tried it on my new refrigerator which has a magnetic catch. The bill slipped out easily. Called the store and they said the story was nonsense. Are they telling me the truth—Mrs. L.W.B.

Yes. It may have had some validity years ago, but the story has gone on and on, like a legend. The only way to check the new type of gasket door seals is to put a 150-watt bulb on an extension cord and close the door on the cord. If light shows anywhere around the door, there's a leak. The dollar bill yarn now deserves only burial.

Dear Dorothy: I've got an improvement on your method for getting milk stains off concrete. You recommended a strong alkaline detergent and a stiff brush. Same thing happened here on the cement porch. I made a solution of one of the pre-soak laundry products and let it stand on the drain for a couple of hours. Rinsed off, there was hardly a trace left — Jan Westheimer

Dear Dorothy: We buy vitamins whenever they're on sale at certain discount stores. Just took down one of the bottles from the shelf. It must have been bought some time back because the date shows it has "expired." Do you know whether a fully sealed bottle would retain potency?—Eugenia Trask.

Checked with Eli Lilly & Co., one of the major ethical drug firms. They say, in effect, that once an expiration date has been hit, the pills have had it. The moral, of course, is to check all the dates on vitamins and other pills.

Dear Dorothy: Here's a piece of advice for the many who buy unpainted furniture and stain it themselves. I'm in the business of selling such furniture. Every so often a customer will bring in a shelf from a bookcase, complaining that it had warped — even with no particularly heavy books on it. The trouble is that the two ends of the board had not been finished. The ends need more attention than the rest of the shelving as moisture can come in and out — the way wood breathes. The ends should be sandpapered if rough, and they usually are, then stained and waxed two or three times to seal the wood. — Wolfgang C.

Dear Dorothy: I have a large candle collection and lately notice that some are starting to fade. Is there any way to prolong the bright colors? — Lori Eison

There is a wax-like material that comes in many colors. You can buff it on with the fingers. You ought to be able to find it in any well-stocked handicraft store.

Keeps mumbling — "No. Can't be! Mistake!" — Poor guy's just facing the reality that growth is not forever!

The way we see it

Trading in quantity for quality

For decades suburban communities have devoted most of their energy to coping with the phenomenal growth of the post-World War II years.

The growth fostered a "more" mentality — more building, more schools, more police and firemen, more of everything from sanitation workers to city planners.

The area was dominated by young families with children. It was as exciting a period for the communities that received the full growth cycle as it is for those Northwest suburbs currently experiencing rapid growth.

But for many communities there has been a shift. Mount Prospect was one of the first to discuss it publicly, and once the research was done and the facts were in, officials recognized their town had matured and their population was on the verge of decline.

Now Arlington Heights has had its first glimpse of the handwriting on the wall. Village officials reviewed preliminary census figures that showed only a small increase of 1,794 persons since the village's 1972 census. Significantly, the figures showed a drop in population of more than 10 per cent in 14 areas of the village.

Officials had predicted a 4,600 increase in residents and were puzzled by the more marginal increase.

Actually, it shouldn't be all that surprising. Village officials need only look at what is happening in the school districts within Arlington Heights and the reason for the population decline in many areas will be apparent.

Arlington Heights, like Des Plaines, Mount Prospect and other older suburbs, has just about reached its maximum expansion. There is little land available for annexation that promises more revenue than expense.

At the same time many of those young families have grown up — the little children are now in high school, in college, or moved away from home. Birth rates here, and across the nation, have dropped.

Home prices locally have increased dramatically, closing the door of ownership to many young marrieds in search of a community in which to raise their families.

One by one, suburban communities are stabilizing. They are entering a new era, one that takes just as much if not more planning and forethought as the growth period.

Maturing communities need to take a realistic view of the future. They will find projected revenue growing more slowly and people problems multiplying. They must assess the needs of residents and match them with services they can afford to provide.

They must realign their thinking to deal with a new reality, a new lifestyle.

nity is not a crisis. Although the

The stabilization of a commune-ed for "bigger and better" has diminished, the need for high quality community services remains.

Derks will need cooperation of all his staff

There will be a variety of challenges facing Robert Derks, Arlington Heights' new police chief, when he assumes command Oct. 18.

He replaces L. W. Calderwood, the only police chief many Arlington Heights residents have ever known. Calderwood directed local law enforcement froma time when the community was a blossoming suburb until it grew to the largest municipality in the Northwest suburbs.

Through those years, he fostered several key assistants who, as well, have only known L. W. Calderwood's brand of police work.

What these key police department personnel must understand is that there are many ways of doing a competent and effective job. With Robert Derks taking control, they should be prepared for new direction, leadership and a new style of management.

As we have said before, Calderwood handled his position with the utmost professionalism, a standard not easily met.

Since Calderwood left June 30, Capt. Paul Buckholz has served as acting chief, and he deserves commendation for a job well done. Derks wil need Buckholz's counsel and support in leading the Arlington Heights police force.

A child's view of abortion issue

The subject of abortion is one which is receiving a lot of discussion lately on television, in the newspapers and in our home.

My 6-year-old daughter approached me last week asking what an abortion was. I told her that as our law now stands, if a woman, for various reasons, does not want the baby growing inside of her body she is free to go to a doctor and have the baby removed, resulting in the baby's death.

My daughter's eyes widened with shock. "Mom, I think that's terrible. Why doesn't someone just adopt the babies?"

How beautiful and unsullied is the simple, direct logic of a child.

Worthy of note

I want everyone to know that there are still good, considerate people in this world.

On Friday, Sept. 10, my family was shopping at McDade & Co., in Palatine. I forget and left my purse on the roof of our car. Mrs. Rowe of Palatine was kind enough to find it and return it to me. She did not want any reward so I just want her to know how much I appreciate it that she brought the purse back to me.

Thank you very much from the bottom of my heart. I will always remember you.

"Love is where you find it." We found it in Rolling Meadows on Jimmy O'Dishoo Day, Sept. 4.

We've loved our town since we moved here 17 years ago because of the people in it, and on Sept. 4 our neighbors, yes — friends, definitely — overwhelmed us with a surprise benefit street dance to help us over some hard times.

How can we ever thank everyone who worked so hard to provide such a good time and all our friends, there are so many, who came to our aid.

There is so much love in our hearts and we'll be forever grateful.

John and Dorothy O'Dishoo

(Editor's note: Jimmy O'Dishoo, 10, broke his leg in a skateboard accident May 10. Family insurance was not adequate to pay his medical bills, so neighbors threw a surprise street dance Sept. 4 to help the family.)

Another version of tax story

Your "tax windfall" story in the Aug. 24 Herald misrepresented the tax collection process and, therefore, mislead the local homeowners. Schaumburg Township will not realize a "windfall" of $127,000 in extra revenue.

As your editors should know, township money requirements for the ensuing year are submitted to the county clerk each fall. Every taxing body (school districts, county, sanitary district, village, fire district, park district, etc.) does the same. A tax rate is established for each taxing body by dividing the money it needs by the total equalized assessed valuation of the area it covers. A particular home may be located in eight or 10 taxing districts. The total for all of these taxing districts establishes the tax rate for that home and for all other homes in the same group of taxing districts. The total tax rate applied to the equalized assessed valuation of the home sets the tax bill — the total amount the homeowner must pay.

If the assessed valuation of Schaumburg Township increases dramatically, it is not the township that will benefit, but rather the homeowner. The total tax bill will be spread over a larger assessed valuation resulting in smaller individual tax bills.

Please keep in mind that no taxing body can receive an amount of tax money larger than the budget it submits.

Three versions of party unity

Parties are faking togetherness

by STEVE BROWN
A news analysis

Unity in a political party can be an interesting phenomenon. There are several new examples of party unity which deserve review.

Consider first the role of maverick Gov. Daniel "I won't call him Doves" Walker. When Jimmy Carter blitzed Illinois, Walker was right there with him. He was also right there with Mayor Richard J. Daley and Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett.

"It should be remembered that first, last and always, I am a Democrat," Walker intoned in that moralistic voice that has signaled so many political feuds over the past four years.

Walker started making that "I am a Democrat" comment last spring as part of a humorous, tongue-in-cheek monologue he did before the Illinois Legislative Correspondents Association in Springfield and later before a rally of loyal campaign workers in Chicago.

Walker's comments, followed by a parody of what some of the state's more noted political reporters would have said about the remark, brought down the house with both the media group and the campaign crowd.

They all thought the routine was pretty funny. It still is. It is hard to imagine Walker, after calling for an investigation to see if Howlett is a crook, now stumping for his election.

The governor noted in his remarks to the state Democratic Convention that primary campaigns were the time to give the voters a choice, but the general election campaign was a time for party unity. That was a very insightful remark, but if that is the case why didn't Walker end his divisive fight with the Daley Democrats after the 1972 election?

It is hard to imagine Dan Walker, who carved a niche in Illinois political history with his confrontation-style politics, going along with the mayor and Howlett.

The Democrats are not alone on the unity kick, though. The GOP also is demonstrating some unity of their own. Former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie announced last week that two of Ronald Reagan's key Illinois campaign strategists, U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and State Rep. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, were joining the committee to help President Gerald R. Ford beat Jimmy Carter in Illinois.

That was followed by a meeting between Crane and Ford in Washington. Crane's statement following the meeting indicated that the president was advised he better hold to the Republican platform.

An observer gets the impression Crane's statement to Ford was more a warning than advice. Following his abortive effort to draft conservative New York Sen. James Buckley for the GOP presidential nomination, Crane stopped just short of writing off the Republican ticket for this election year.

There is little indication that anything has changed enough to make him feel differently now.

It might be interesting to watch how much vigor either Crane or Totten demonstrate for Ford in the remaining days of the fall campaign. Both men have a logical out to avoid an active campaign for Ford in their own reelection bids. There is reason to believe that in Crane's race, the involvement with the Reagan campaign will be an issue. There is some question in Totten's Third Legislative District whether the Reagan question will be an issue.

That race involving Totten in the Third Legislative District offers another piece to the party unity puzzle. Here there are two Republicans, Totten and State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, running for reelection.

There are also two Democrats, incumbent State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Elk Grove Park District Comr. Joan Brennan.

A logical mind would suggest that Brennan would be campaigning against Totten and Macdonald in an effort to win her seat in the Illinois General Assembly. But to date there is no indication that Mrs. Brennan even knows there are Republicans in the race.

She has concentrated efforts on showing her differences with Chapman and attempting to align herself with Daley Democrats in the city, because Chapman has on occasions failed to follow the party line.

The three vignettes suggest that despite all the claims of party unity coming from both the Democrats and Republicans, things aren't quite that peaceful.

Fraud contaminates Medicaid program

Watch on Washington

by Clark Mollenhoff

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Prison terms for doctors, lawyers and businessmen will be necessary to put an end to the multi-billion-dollar frauds in the Medicaid and Medicare programs.

That is the view of Sen. Frank Moss, the usually compassionate Utah Democrat whose personal role as an undercover investigator dramatized the depth and pervasiveness of frauds on Medicaid.

Moss, chairman of the subcommittee on long-term care of the Committee on Aging, declared that failure to control frauds and corruption in the nation's health programs can dis credit and destroy programs and bankrupt cities and states in the same manner that New York city was brought to a financial crisis in 1975.

Although the most recent hearings have dealt with the corruption and mismanagement of the Medicaid program, Moss said that the weaknesses disclosed in the investigations and prosecutions of crimes againt Medicaid are a reflection of weaknesses that have contaminated the Medicare program.

The federal responsibility for the laxity must be shared by the four secretaries of Health, Education and Welfare — Robert Finch, Elliot Richardson, Caspar Weinberger, and David Mathews, Moss said.

"THE LACK OF continuity in the administration of HEW under the Nixon and Ford administrations was a contributing factor, because they (the secretaries) rarely understood fully what they were dealing with . . ."

Moss said the internal reports of HEW disclosed at least as early as 1969 that there was a massive problem in enforcing criminal laws and administering the health care programs, but that all four secretaries of HEW "poured out assurances that they were on top of the problem, and would soon have it solved."

Lack of proper investigative staff in HEW was one of the major problems from the outset, Moss said. He noted that HEW has not hired more investigators even in the face of criticism from his subcommittee and from a House Government Operations subcommittee headed by Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C.

"Even in the last few weeks, Sec. Mathews' reaction to criticism was to accuse me of grandstanding in going undercover to find out for myself how bad things were," Moss said.

Moss declared that it is only under "the flood of publicity" that accompanied his most recent hearings on the massive frauds in New York that Sec. Mathews has been moved to announce he will hire 100 more investigators.

SENATOR MOSS declared that he believes the corruption and mismanagement of Medicaid and Medicare are good issues for the Democrats to use against President Ford this year and that establishment of an effective Office of Inspector General for the Dept. of Health Education and Welfare is a vital step to prodding federal and state administrators of the programs to push "the prosecutions that will be needed to establish that they mean business."

The subcommittee has issued a massive 287-page report on the investigation of Medicaid mills. It is estimated that at least 10 per cent of the $15 billion annual expenditure is lost through outright frauds and a wide range of misuses that represent distortions of the program and waste health care funds.

In many states the operations are so lax that no more than 50 per cent of the Medicaid expenditures go for actual medical services, with the rest going for "factoring" and various services of doctors, lawyers and businessmen — entrepreneurs who view the lax programs as fair game for big profits.

Moss declared that the business, medical and legal types who are preying on Medicaid are "racketeers" who get by with their rackets because of the laxity of city, county and state officials.

"UNTIL SOME of them go to jail and pay some heavy fines, the Medicaid mills will continue as good business," Moss said. "The aggressive leadership has to come from the top in HEW."

"While a significant amount of fraud continues to haunt the Medicare program," Moss said, "the Medicare program is light years ahead of Medicaid from the point of view of fiscal integrity."

Medicare has a Program Integrity Unit that has too few people to handle a massive caseload, but the Medicaid program is virtually without controls, Moss said.

While Sec. Mathews chides Moss that his estimate of $1.5 billion in fraud in the $15 billion Medicaid program is much too high, Sen. Moss said he believes that estimate "is modest" when you look at the details of any of the program operations in New York.

WITH REGARD to physician frauds, Moss estimated that $300 million is ripped off annually by Medicare. He said this $300 million "is stolen by comparatively few physicians."

"About 10 per cent of the 250,000 physicians who participate in the Medicare program have been accused of fraud and abuse over the past five years," Moss said.

Of the 13,931 proven fraud and abuse cases involving physicians, only 15 doctors have served some jail time for Medicare fraud in the last 10 years, only two have had their licenses revoked and none has been terminated from participation in Medicare programs, Moss said.

Moss declared that in the great majority of cases the physicians "are simply asked to pay back the money they have stolen" and are permitted to continue in the program "making the restitution from future earnings."

"The long and short of it is that the message we have given physicians is, 'Go ahead and steal,' " Moss said.

Moss said that one doctor had told him "the only thing they are afraid of is the Internal Revenue Service" and "fortunately, for them, the IRS has been singularly inactive when it comes to pursuing the leads referred to it by the Program Integrity Unit."

The Justice Dept. also comes in for its share of criticism in prosecution of Medicare and Medicaid frauds. The cases are permitted to languish for months and even years because of a "rock-bottom priority."

In addition to destroying criminal prosecution when elderly witnesses die or become uncertain on their testimony, Moss said his investigators have found that the government lost more than $1 million on 320 civil fraud cases because Justice delays let the statute of limitations run out.

Moss also lashed out at the "permissive judges" who refuse to send convicted phyicians to jail.

Dorothy Meyer's column

Miracle of miracles! Week passes, and all goes right

The Age of Miracles is not yet past. This week has been living testimonial to that fact.

Monday I cleaned house just for the heck of it — and unexpected company popped in! (They popped right out again, and it wasn't until yesterday that I learned from a third party that my surprise guests took one look at the place and thought they were in the wrong house.)

Tuesday I did one load of stuff called "Dainties" on my six-cycle washer, then did a batch of rags in the recycled washwater — and a church person did not come to call while I was folding the laundry. (On second thought maybe this wasn't so great; after the last time that happened I found a Care package of lingerie on my porch.)

Wednesday was routine until I came home from work. I took off my wig and changed into my relaxing-around-the-house ensemble — Marilyn's oldest college sweatshirt and a pair of blue jeans my son outgrew eight years ago.

THEN I discovered I was out of cigarettes. Of course, I didn't feel like getting dressed again, but I was not primed to quit smoking, so I went to the store the way I was. And I didn't run into everybody I know, especially my best friend and her immaculate sister-in-law.

Thursday was a super-hectic day at work, mostly because the telephones wouldn't quit ringing, and therefore I was really looking forward to an evening of doing nothing but looking at television. There were a couple of specials on that I wanted to watch — and the telephone didn't ring once in those two hours. It didn't even ring the minute I stepped in the door with my arms full of groceries, nor just as I was about to sit down to dinner, nor when I was in the bathtub.

Friday was almost too good to be true.

I got to work two minutes early and the boss was there to notice. On my lunch hour I stopped in a dress shop, saw an outfit I wanted and when I paid for it the clerk said it was on sale.

After work I went bowling with the company league and I didn't drop the ball in back of me, throw it in the gutter or hit my ankle with it. Then a bunch of us went out to eat and I didn't spill my soup, get salad dressing on my elbow or drop cigaret ashes all over the butter.

AS I SAY, yesterday was almost too much, and I am facing today with mixed emotions. Will it be a continuation of the rest of the week? Or has the rest of the week been a sign of an end-of-the-world reappearance of Halley's comet?

Ooops. I just spilled coffee all over this column, so you can relax. Things are back to normal.

Debates usurp public right to know

by PETER CAMEJO

The controversy over which presidential candidates will be allowed to debate before the American people has, itself, become a revealing aspect of the 1976 campaign. At stake is the public's right to hear, their right to know, and their right to decide.

In 1960 it took a special act of Congress to exempt the Kennedy-Nixon debates from the long-standing equal time provisions of the Federal Communications Act — provisions aimed ensuring independent candidates and their ideas receive a fair hearing at election time. But in 1975 the Federal Communications Commission made a change in the interpretation of the law.

This decision marked a precedent-setting assault designed to significantly weaken equal-time regulations. Although the ruling immediately went into effect, it was challenged in the courts and the case is now pending before the Supreme Court.

The ready agretment of the League of Women Voters to serve as a vehicle for this thinly disguised attempt to curtail dissent is especially unfortunate. The League's sponsorship of a debate designated to foster the idea that the Democrats and Republicans are the only parties worth considering contradicts the League's own well-known standard of nonpartisanship.

The central argument that the TV networks and the League of Women Voters advance to justify this undemocratic procedure is that there are "too many candidates." There is supposedly not enough time to hear anyone but Ford and Carter.

The truth is that there is plenty of time for discussion. Americans hear a lot more from the makers of soap and dog food than from political parties. The major networks and their corporate advertisers almost totally exclude serious discussion of the critical issues in American Society.

The Socialist Workers Party is fighting its exclusion on the basis that the American people not only have the right but face the necessity of considering new proposals for moving the nation forward in this time of crisis.

It is certain that — except for cosmetic disagreements — neither President Ford nr Jimmy Carter will give serious answers to the major problems facing America. These issues must be discussed, and we are fighting to have my running-mate, Willie Mae Reid, a black woman, included in the Dole-Mondale debate.

In the face of widespread social problems and a deep distrust of both Democrats and Republicans in the wake of Watergate and the Vietnam War, the debates are an attempt to show that the two-party system still works.

At the same time it is a crude attempt to portray the Democrats and Republicans as the only "serious" alternatives, by excluding the Socialist Workers Party and other opposition parties.

Whether or not the Socialist Work-Party prevails in its attempts to debate along side the Democrats and Republicans, many Americans will be disturbed by a simple, unanswered question. If Ford and Carter are offering real solutions to the pressing needs of American working people, why were they afraid to defend their positions against the independent candidates?

PETER CAMEJO is the presidential candidate of the Socialist Workers Party.

Human factor important in dealing with employes

by CLARENCE ZAITZ

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The No. 1 survival skill for today's business manager is the human relations skill — the ability to understand human behavior and to deal with it intelligently, says Karl Albrecht, management consultant.

Albrecht, who heads his own firm, Management Sciences, and conducts seminars for the University of California, San Diego, on management by objectives, says the whole question of workerand managers and their relationship to each other began to change in the '30s and '40s.

But not enough managers and supervisors have recognized the changing attitude of workers, he said.

"WORKERS ARE less willing to take abuse from large corporations than were their parents. These employes are not working for the manager. They are working for themselves and their own needs."

Those needs, in addition to money, Albrecht said, are "social contact with other people and gratification at the job. These are just as important as income in the pocket."

He teaches the concept of objective-oriented management — a form of management he believes has gotten a bad name because of its misuse by many corporations.

"The concept has too often been misapplied and then discarded," Albrecht explained, "usually because it was over-bureaucratized. Instead of being a servant it becomes a master, and the resulting forms and reports are more of a handicap than an advantage."

The way Albrecht sees it, most management-by-objective programs are instituted at the top of the organization, and handed down as an edict to be followed by lower-level managers.

"WHAT IS seldom done," he said, "is for management to go down to the grass roots and inspect the responses workers have to change."

Any organization has a fair mount of inertia, Albrecht said, and resistance to almost any kind of change. "People like routines and patterns, and any major change which disrupts some aspect of that equilibrium needs to be efficiently communicated."

An organization must be looked upon as a social system rather than a mechanical apparatus, according to the consultant. "If a person worries about losing his job, his status, or fears his relationships with other workers will be damaged, he will resist change." Objective-oriented management then becomes a decentralized selling job, "to sell all people in the organization on the basis that the changes are worthwhile to them as individuals."

By communicating with the employes, telling them what the firm's goals are and how the workers fit into the scheme of things, Albrecht said, the firm will establish a better working environment and productivity is likely to increase.

St. Viator shades Hersey in dramatic 12-10 battle

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

The Lions of St. Viator stood in the gloom in front of Hersey High School, waiting for their bus and shouting, "Where's Nicolau? Where's Nicolau?"

The Hersey Huskies might have easily been asking themselves the same thing as Dave Nicolau, the Lions' 6-5, 230-pound senior tackle practically erased the memory of Scott Zettek and pushed Viator to a 12-10 win Friday night.

Nicolau never accomplished that but Hersey quarterback Dan Vucovich will be excused for seeing a shimmering white "79" coming at him in his sleep for the next few nights.

"I don't think they will miss Zettek at all," said Hersey coach Joe Gliwa. "That kid is just super. I wish somebody like him would come here for a change."

Viator coach Jim Lyne, who erased the memory of two stinging defeats at the hands of the Huskies last year, enthused, "I think Nicolau played as well as Zettek ever did tonight. Maybe better."

Nicolau was at his best when the Huskies were making one last try for the winning points with the fourth quarter rapidly disappearing.

Starting at their own 15 yard line, Hersey advanced to the 39 on the running of Vucovich, Tony Becker and an exhausted Wally Hommerding.

Then Nicolau jumped all over the Hersey offense.

He began by batting down a pass on first and ten, teamed with Terry Shanahan for a sack that nailed Vucovich for a nine yard loss then swatted down one more pass that forced Hersey to punt.

The Huskies' offense never got on the field again.

Were it not for three critical errors, two fumbles and a roughing the kicker penalty, Hersey might have had the game in the bag by then.

In the first quarter Hersey's defense stopped Viator and forced them to punt. But Jamie Braddock, back to receive, let the ball wiggle through his fingers and Viator recovered.

The Lions took it home from there behind the running of John Gillen (10 carries for 89 yards for the night) and John Thompson (16 carries for 71 yards) with quarterback John Josten scoring from the one.

On the Huskies' next series Hommerding fumbled the ball after grabbing Vucovich's pass and Viator picked up the ball and 10 plays later Josten hit Mike Cusack with a 12-yard touchdown pass to put the Lions on top 12-0.

A grandstand catch by Hersey receiver Brian Robertson with 59 seconds left in the first half trimmed the Lions' halftime lead to 12-7 and set up a second half that Hersey dominated almost completely.

Bob Schackner trimmed three points off the Viator lead early in the third quarter with a 37-yard field goal but his 22-yard chip shot with 7:21 left in the fourth quarter was wide.

The Hersey defense almost gave the Huskies one more chance to be heroes when they forced Viator to punt with barely a minute left.

Joe Pusatera, whose interception minutes earlier had set up the offensive series that Nicolau singlehandedly foiled, took the punt on the run and sailed to Viator's 12 yard line.

But the third Huskie error, and with the Hersey punt rushers flying out of control it could hardly be classified a mistake, was the roughing the kicker penalty and Viator had the ball, a first down and the game.

"It was your typical rock 'em, sock 'em Hersey-Viator game," Gliwa said. "We had a golden opportunity and had the game right there." He patted his hip pocket.

"But unfortunately, we got a piece of the kicker there near the end."

For Lyne, the win was special. "This game means everything to us. We've got our pride back now and we can hold our heads up."

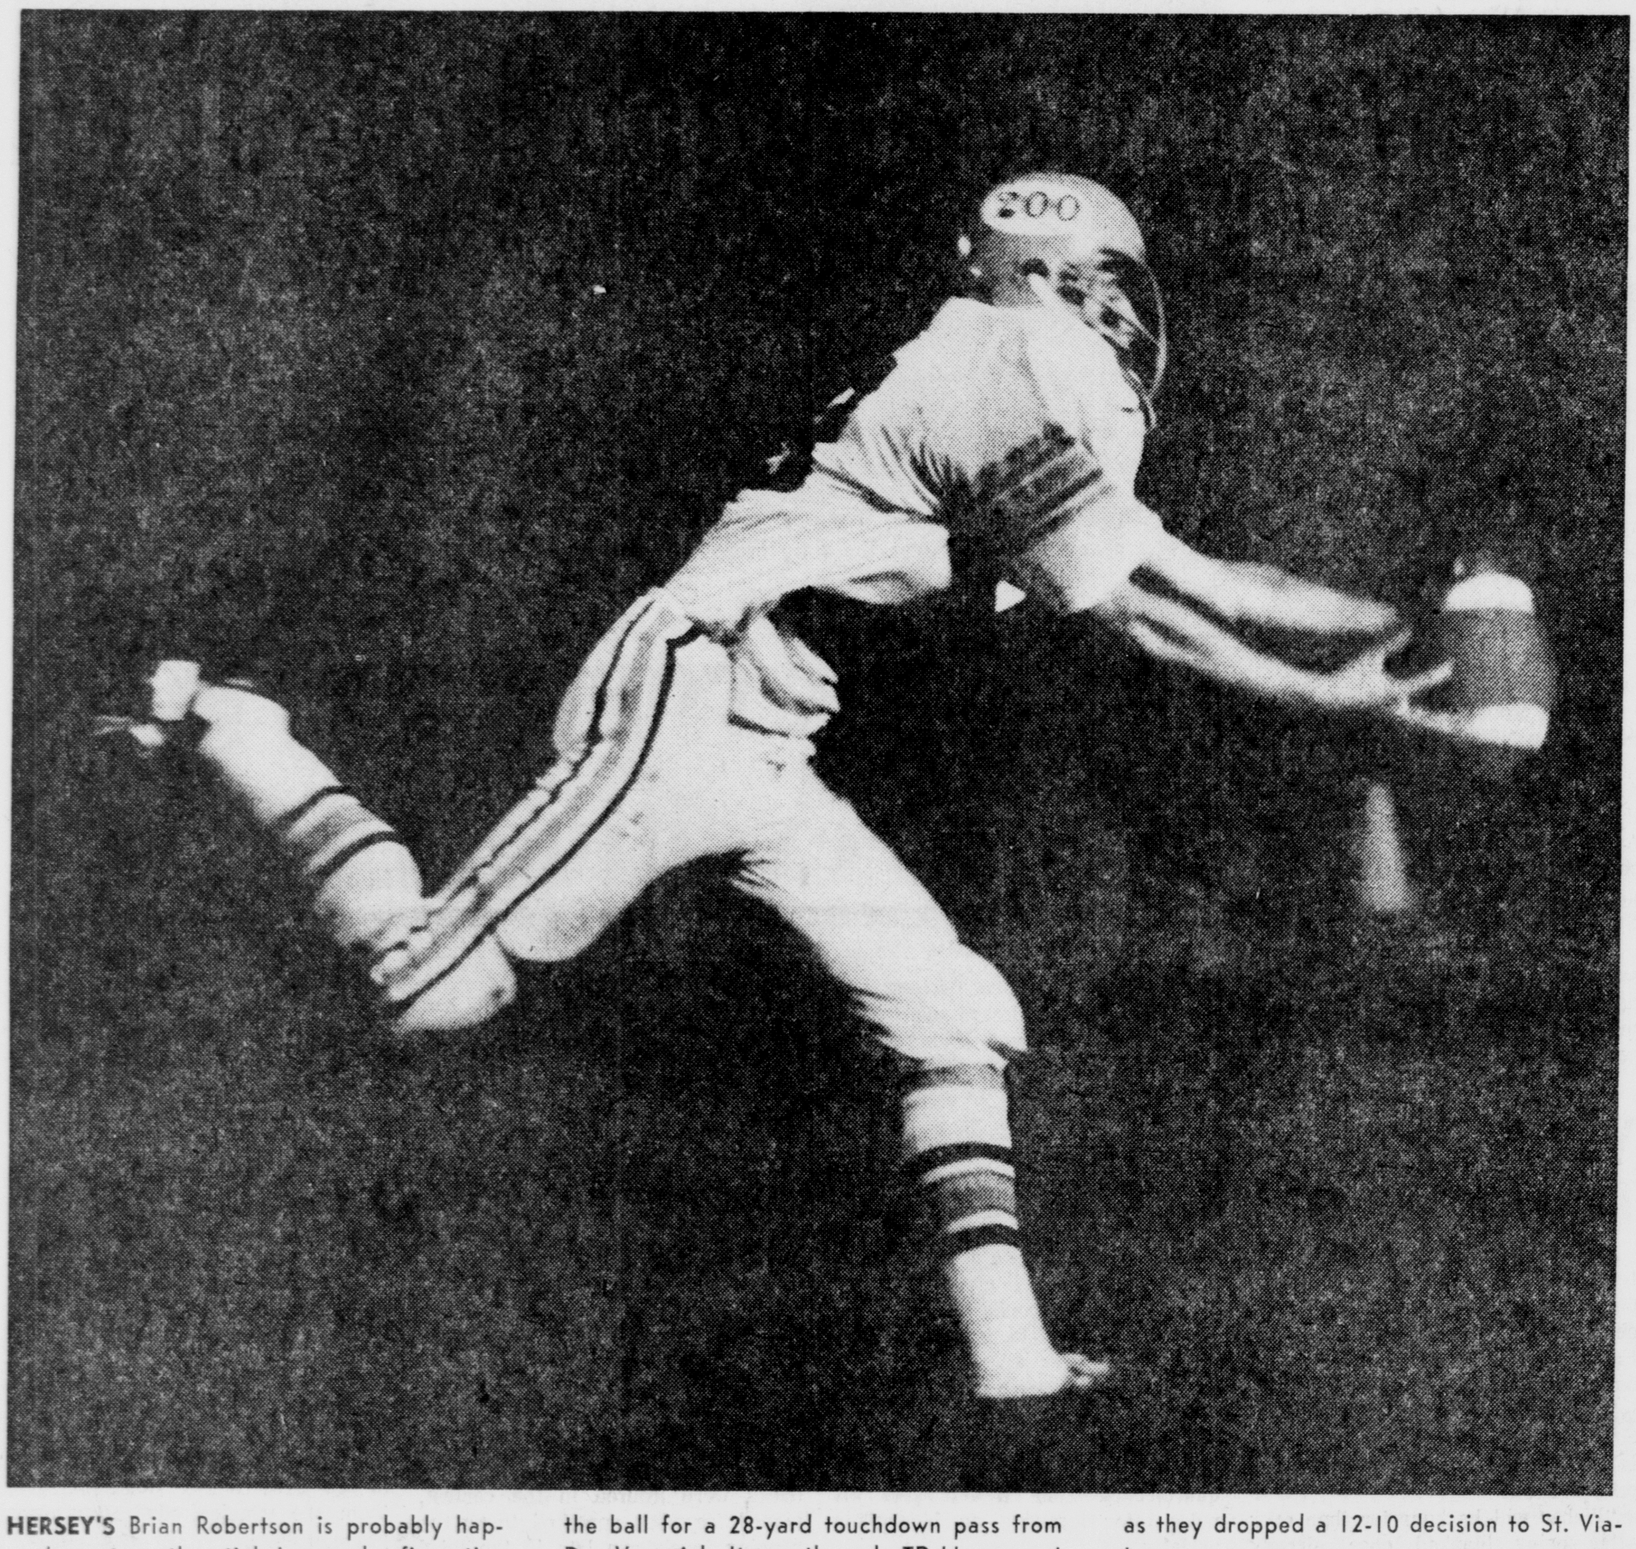
Falcons blank Knights in South opener



HERSEY'S Brian Robertson is probably happy he put on the stick 'em as he fingertips the ball for a 28-yard touchdown pass from Dan Vucovich. It was the only TD Hersey got as they dropped a 12-10 decision to St. Viator.

Tough defense silences Prospect's attack, 21-0

by KEITH REINHARD

Yes Virginia, the Forest View defense is for real.

A week ago the Falcons caged a celebrated St. Viator eleven. Friday night they were at it again, leaving visiting Prospect in their wake this time, 21-0, by blending another stellar effort on defense with a solid offensive attack.

"I guess we do have a little more offense," understated Falcon head coach Fred Lussow afterwards in obvious reference to the fact that his squad had little need to demonstrate it the previous weekend.

Led by flashy tailback Bob Jenovai, Forest View unleashed a multi-faceted ground game that churned up 241 yards. And quarterback Bill Payne selectively added 121 more yards for the hosts through the air.

But it was still the Falcon defense basking in the limelight. Of the 107 yards garnered by the Knights, only 27 were gained by the overland route.

"I felt our defense was super tonight because this was one fine team they kept away from the goal line," Lussow explained. "Prospect's offense does a lot of different things. They're going to hurt some people this year."

When pressed to cite any standout individuals among his defense, Lussow added: "It would be easier to pick out some of the mistakes we made than to praise any one or two kids. They all did an outstanding job. Ted Wissen and Bob Henderson have been great in coaching this unit."

Henderson and Wissen were a little more specific. Defensive tackle Jim Brown turned in an excellent performance. He and guys like Joe Forrsander and Rick Gardner play both ways so their efforts were twice as demanding.

Other names tossed out included defensive ends Jim Kennedy and Mike Murray, halfback Jim Curley, noseman Steve Chromick and safety John Lind, who had the dubious task of keeping touted Knight receiver Brad Millar in check.

Forest View stuck initially in the first quarter, Payne unleashing a long heave that Forssander caught on the run and raced into the end zone. The play covered 66 yards and Lon Reitz converted the kick for a 7-0 lead.

That score stood up through intermission. In period three, Payne connected with Forssander again for 36 yards and Jenovai kicked in with 21 more on a single jaunt. Eventually the drive covered 85 yards with Payne sneaking over from the three.

Another conversion boot by Reitz made it 14-0.

In the fourth quarter, a 5-7, 130-pound junior named Mack Jones scurried 23 yards through enemy turf to set up the night's final score. Rick Gardner took it in from the three on the next play and Reitz closed out scoring with his third PAT of the night.

Prospect had little to cheer about most of the evening. Erik Wilkins pulled in four passes for over 50 yards to key an offense that never penetrated beyond Forest View's 35 yard line. The Knight defense was spearheaded by linebacker Paul Izban, who notched at least three solo sacks and recovered the one Falcon fumble of the night.

Jenovai personally rushed for 121 yards while Jones, who has been affectionately dubbed "The Flea," added nearly 50 more to the Falcon thrust. John Miscevich came on in the backfield for the hosts in the late going and also did some impressive ball carrying.

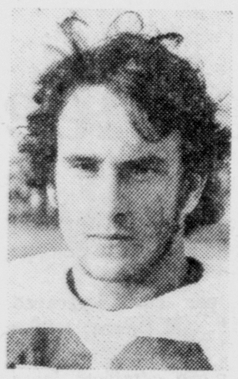
Meadows wins second game, 22-14

by MIKE KLEIN



Rick Sutton

This old continent is overblown with high school football players who have grown no larger than Rolling Meadows senior tailback Rick Sutton.

Sutton is the typical high school tailback size, 5-foot-8 and 165 pounds. He is more than a typical player.

The Mustangs stood proud Friday evening as Sutton, their smallest offensive threat, ran and passed Rolling Meadows (2-0) to its 22-14 home field victory in the Mid-Suburban South opener against Hoffman Estates (0-2).

Sutton's 13 rushes from scrimmage netted 183 yards, nine yards more than Hoffman's total offense output.

Sutton scored the Mustangs' first points with a 75-yard TD run at 1:52 of the first quarter. When Gary Adams plunged in for the two-point conversion, first year head coach Art Klein's team led, 8-7.

Hoffman Estates owned a 7-0 lead after a 10-play drive that started the game. Quarterback John Staback bootlegged left 17 yards to score and Kris Hanssen kicked the extra point at 7:14.

It was an 8-7 game at intermission when Sutton already owned 110 yards rushing. The other significant note was that Meadows co-captain Dennis Drolet had replaced Bill Collis at quarterbak.

Drolet, with too few practices, was ineligibile when Meadows defeated Wheeling last weekend. Collis engineered that 29-6 victory and he started Friday's game.

Collis was replaced by Drolet early in the second period against Hoffman Estates after he threw a sideline interception to Staback who made an extraordinary catch.

There was plenty to be done after intermission for Sutton. His three rushes for 21 yards helped Meadows down to Hoffman's 19-yard line after the Mustangs took the second half kickoff.

Drolet then scrambled to his right and found Steve Stiert open downfield for the touchdown. Stiert left behind one tackler after his reception. The kick failed, but Meadows led, 14-7.

If a sour note could be sounded to this Meadows victory, it certainly must be 17 penalties that cost the Mustangs 121 yards. And nearly perhaps the game.

Holding that 14-7 lead, Meadows had the Hawks stopped with fourth and long yardage. But when Staback punted, Hoffman clipped. So coach Bill Gourley's team kept the ball at midfield.

Three Bob Kearley rushes later, Hoffman had moved 30 yards. Then fullback Tresy Todd barely missed scoring on a 19-yard run for the left-side flag.

An illegal procedure penalty ensued against the Hawks, but nothing could deny them Staback's short TD pass to Todd who took the ball unchallenged.

There was no question to Hanssen's conversion kick, as the two teams played 36 minutes of 14-14 football.

Staback had been nearly flawless quarterbacking the Hawks, playing single safety, intercepting one pass, returning all kicks and even punting.

But when he slipped just once, early during the final period, there stood Meadows and Sutton.

With second down and nine at midfield, Staback pitched wildly to his fullback, Todd, who managed to jump upon the ball for a 9-yard loss.

Hoffman was not so fortunate on the next play. Staback pitched wildly again. This time the ball was recovered by Paul Schweikert of the Mustangs.

Sutton lost two yards rushing, but then came the big surprise, his 35-yard pass that Ken Cooper caught and ran to the Hawk 2-yard line.

Mustang fullback Adams, who supplemented Sutton's 183 yards rushing with another 75, rushed one yard. Then he rushed another for a 20-14 lead at 10:31.

Drolet faked the conversion handoff to Adams, ran left, then pitched to Sutton who scored the last points.

Hoffman later ran a nine-play drive to Meadows' 23-yard line, where Staback threw incomplete on fourth and four.

Time remained for the Hawks, if only they could retrieve the ball. But tailback Sutton ended all ideas of that as the clock wound down. He ran 42 yards on one play. He ran 13 yards on another.

Pirates close in; Royals handle Sox

From Herald Wire Services

Doc Medich got clutch relief help from Dave Giusti and a pair of RBIs from Frank Taveras to lead Pittsburgh to a 4-1 victory over the New York Mets Friday night and enable the Pirates to draw within three games of the National League East-leading Philadelphia Phillies.

In afternoon play Jerry Morales delivered a two-out single with the bases loaded in the 12th inning to score Champ Summers and give the Cubs a 4-3 triumph over the Phillies, slumping Philadelphia's third straight loss and 18th in the last 23 games.

The American League West chase showed the Kansas City Royals shading the White Sox, 3-2 behind the seven-hit pitching of Dennis Leonard. The Royals held a four-game lead over Oakland at the finish, but the A's and Texas squared off in a late game Friday night.

For the Pirates, as they continued ot climb in the NL East, Medich hurled 7-1/3 innings, allowing six hits and one run as he ran his record to 7-11. Guisti relieved with one out and the tying runs on base in the eighth and snuffed out the Mets' rally by retiring John Milner and Ed Kranepool. In earning his sixth save Giusti retired all five batters he faced.

The Cubs stunned the Phillies when Summers reached second with one out on an error. Joe Wallis was walked intentionally. Pete LaCock walked to fill the bases before Morales' hit.

The defeat went to the fifth pitcher, Ron Reed, who worked only in the 12th to take his seventh loss against eight wins, while Bruce Sutter,the Cubs' fourth pitcher, got his sixth win against three defeats.

The Phillies came from behind to tie the game in the ninth when Jay Johnstone doubled, reached third on Bobby Tolan's infield out and scored on Bob Boone's single.Jerry Martin ran for Boone and scored the tying run on Bowa's triple.

The Cubs got a run in the second when Morales, Barry Tabb and Manny Trillo singled to fill the bases and Steve Swisher drove in Morales with a sacrifice fly. Another run came in the third when Bill Bonham singled, advanced on Kelleher's sacrifice and scored on Wallis' double. The third Chicago run came in the fifth when Wallis walked and reached third as Bill Madlock was safe at first on Larry Christenson's throwing error.

Madlock attempted to steal second and Wallis scored when catcher Boone threw into center field for an error.

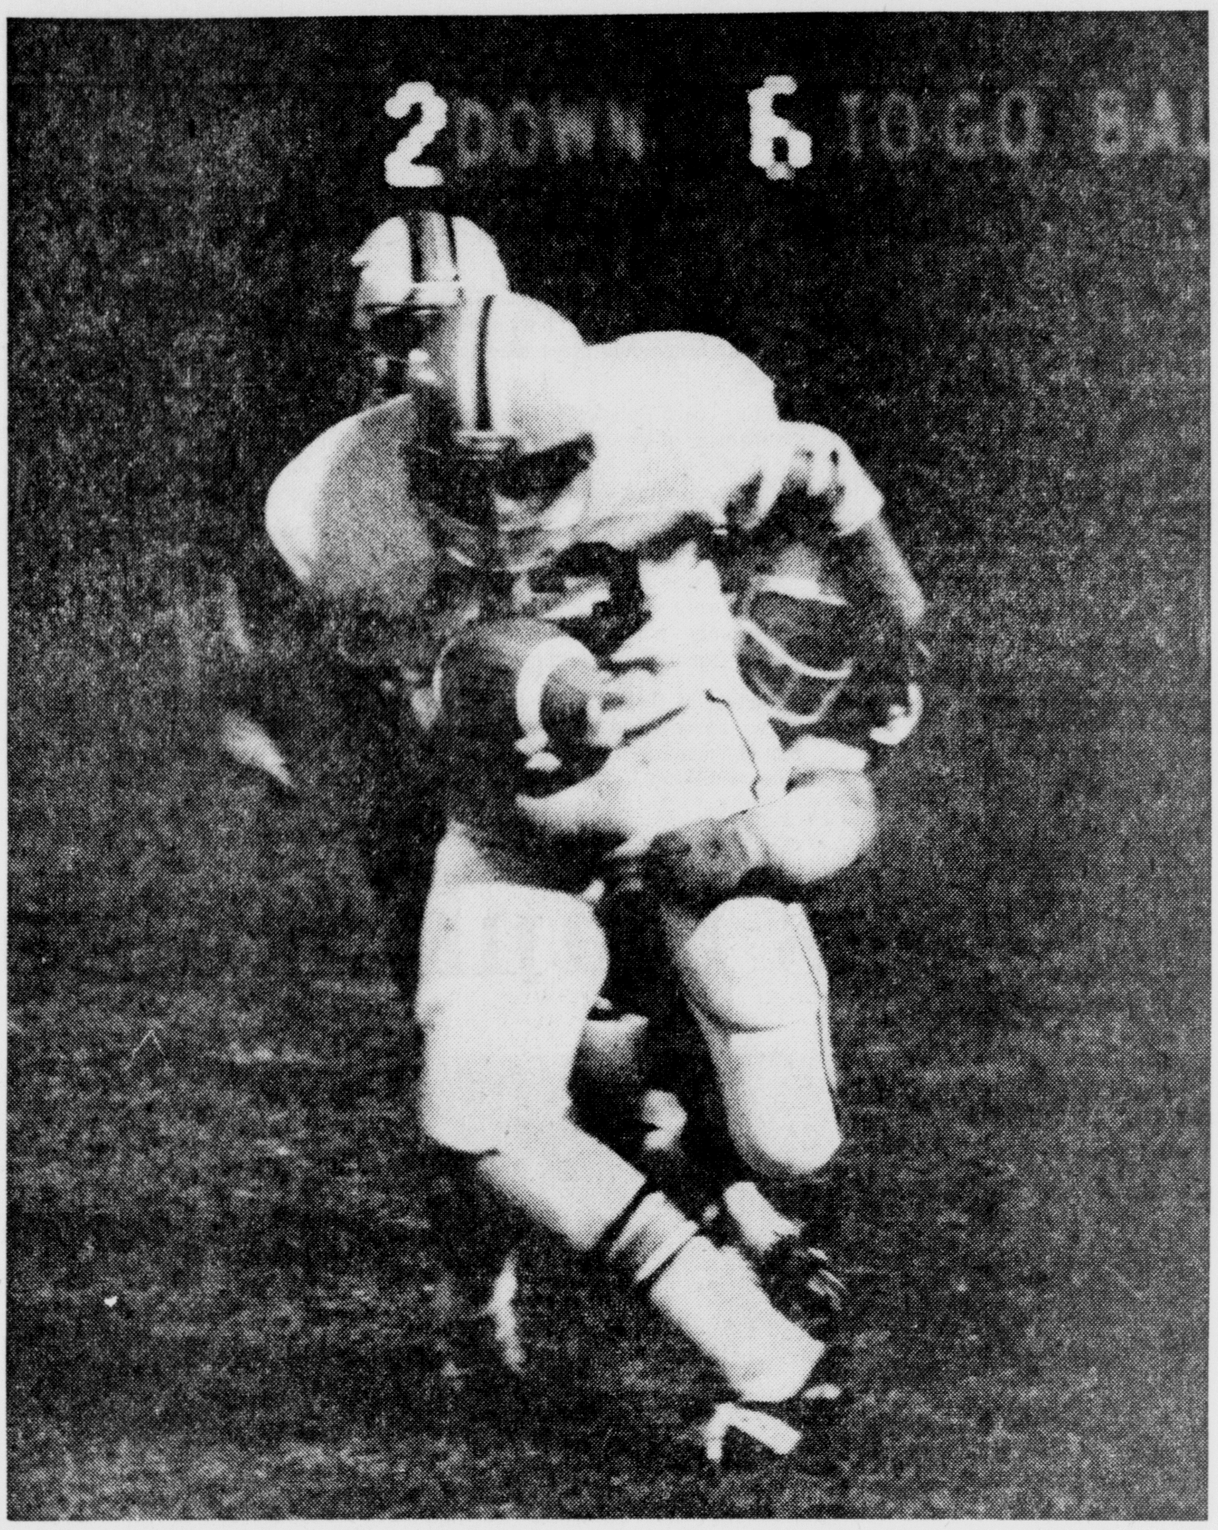
George Brett drove in three runs for Kansas City to give the A.L. West leaders their third victory in the last four games.

Brett singled to left to score Frank Patek with the winning run in the seventh after Patek led off with a single, stole second and went to third on Jim Wohlford's sacrifice.

Brett also drove in Wohlford in the first and third innings.

Chicago scored in the second when Sam Ewing came home on a Bill Stein grounder and in the fourth when Bucky Dent scored on Ralph Garr's single to center.

The White Sox threatened in the ninth when Jorge Orta and Ewing opened with back to back singles and advanced on Brian Downing's bunt. Leonard then gave Jack Brohamer an intentional walk to load the bases and got out of the inning when Tom Poquette made a shoestring catch of Stein's looper along the right field foul line and Dent grounded out.



TONY BECKER of Hersey has company on this run. Viator's defense was all over the field Friday night as they keyed a 12-10 win over the Huskies in an inter-city showdown.

Big Ten powers face stiff tests

Top-ranked Ohio State and No. 2 Michigan should sip the heady wine of success while they can because there's a chance they won't be chug-a-lugging after today's football games.

Ohio State beat Penn State for the first time in five tries last year, 17-9, but the revenge-bent seventh-ranked Nittany Lions, a nine-point underdog, have the home field advantage this season.

Michigan, after trying to impress President Ford that the Wolverines really are No. 1 in the nation during a publicity workout Wednesday, is a 13-point choice over Stanford, a 15-12 loser to Penn State last week.

In other Saturday games involving top ranked teams, third-ranked UCLA is home to Arizona, fourth-ranked Pittsburgh plays at Georgia Tech, No. 5 Oklahoma entertains California, sixth-rated Missouri takes on visiting Illinois, No. 8 Nebraska is at Indiana, ninth rated Georgia travels to Clemson and No. 10 Texas A&M meets host Kansas State.

Pittsburgh All-America Tony Dorsett, making a strong bid for the Heisman Trophy that eluded him when Ohio State's Archie Griffin won the honors the last two years, is the ourth leading rusher in the nation on the basis of his 181 yards in Pitt's upset of Notre Dame last Saturday. He is expected to continue his awesome ground attack against Georgia Tech.

Dorsett has now rushed for 4,315 career and is only 863 yards shy of Griffin's total of 5,177.

Five A's reject Finley's offers

OAKLAND Jerry Kapstein, agent for unsigned players Joe Rudi, Gene Tenace, Bert Campaneris, Rollie Fingers and Don Baylor, told Oakland A's owner Charlie Finley Friday he needn't bother trying to reach terms with the five.

An A's spokesman said Kapstein told the Oakland owner the five players have rejected his latest offer and have no counter offers to make in return.

Kapstein indicated the five have made up their minds to play out their contracts and become free agents at the end of the current season.

"No way I'm ever going to play here again," Tenace said earlier in the week.

"I can't wait to be free," Rudi added.

Nicklaus makes cut! Hill in lead

KINGS MILLS, Ohio — Mike Hill, his injured right leg "aching like a toothache" in Friday's chill rain, shot the best score of the tournament — a six-under par 64 — to grab a one stroke lead at the halfway point of the $150,000 Ohio Kings Island Open. And Jack Nicklaus made the cut!

Hill, making a comeback from a motorcycle accident last year that nearly ended his career, had a two-day total of 70-64—134, one stroke better than New Zealander John Lister's 68-67—135.

In third place with a 70-66—136 was former Bradley University basketball star David Lundstrom, a 29-year-old newcomer to the PGA tour from Galesburg, Ill.

Favored Nicklaus, who finally missed a cut last week after 105 straight tournaments, easily made the cut at his "Jack Nicklaus Golf Center" here with a 71-69—140.

The most prominent player to miss the cut at 143 was Lee Trevino who had a 73-71—144 total.

'The end' says Henry Aaron

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Henry Aaron had one of his greatest moments Friday night but it was also "one of the saddest times" in his life.

Aaron, the man who broke Babe Ruth's home run marks, was honored by baseball greats and officials before a crowd of more than 40,000 in Milwaukee County Stadium where he began his career 23 years ago.

"This is the end for me," Aaron said. That was greetd by shouts of "no, no," from the fans.

"This is probably one of the saddest times in my life," said Aaron.

There are a few more games for Aaron and the Milwaukee Brewers this season but the Salute to Henry Aaron Night was a fitting end to his career. The hour-long ceremonies came before a game with the New York Yankees.

"Your achievements are why I can say you have made a unique contribution to our game," said Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. "There will never be anyone else like you."

Weber visits Buffalo Grove

Although the major high school attention today is focused on Schaumburg where the Saxons and Elk Grove get together (a game previewed in Friday's Herald), another interesting battle takes place in the area.

Weber of Chicago will visit Buffalo Grove, and Bison coach Grant Blaney is definitely concerned about the 2 p.m. contest.

"Weber will be hungrier than ever after being blanked once already (Holy Cross beat Weber 14-0), and our own derense wasn't very infallible against Conant," said Blaney.

"Our defense definitely had some breakdowns last Saturday," said the Bison coach, "but we felt that it showed some positive aspects too. This unit is very inexperienced."

Last year Weber, a member of the Chicago Catholic League, finished with a 4-4 mark.

Dramatic comeback gives Fremd exciting 18-7 win

by BOB RICHARDS

It looked like a repeat performance of last year's Holy Cross game was in the making as Fremd Viking coach Joe Samojedy looked up at the scoreboard with 58 seconds to play Friday with his team trailing, 7-6.

Instant replay was written all over the coach's face. And then it happened.

The Vikings came of age, exploding for two touchdowns on a 29-yard pass play and a 35-yard interception in the game's waning seconds to turn a disappointing loss into a jubilant 18-7 win.

It was just a year ago when Fremd lost to the Crusaders 7-6.

The fireworks started when New Jersey transfer student and Viking quarterback Tom Moffett kept his poise after throwing an incomplete aerial.

On the next play Moffett, throwing from the Holy Cross 29, found junior Kevin Weaver, who, when the original play began crumbling, scrambled and snared the ball at the 20, outracing the defenders into the end zone to make it 12-7 with 40 seconds left.

The extra point was wide, giving Holy Cross a chance to win, but the Crusaders never had a chance. Senior Jim Hamill took care of business on the next play, intercepting a pass from Crusader quarterback Bob Marlovits on their 35. From there, he had only to beat one man to the endzone and Fremd had its icing on the cake.

The extra point was wide (Fremd missed all three), but the two scores were enough to provide Samojedney and his crew some enjoyable moments in the Viking lockerroom following the game.

The game's beginning contrasted greatly with its conclusion as both teams played evenly. The first quarter ended scoreless and it wasn't until 1:30 remained in the half that Fremd broke out on top 6-0 on a four-yard run by tailback Tom Philippe.

Holy Cross, operating an effective veer offense even though two of its backs were injured in the contest, moved for what appeared to be the winning touchdown late in the third quarter.

The touchdown came on a surprise pass play from Marlovitz to senior end Bob Gablin after the Crusaders had tried three times from inside the 10-yard line to score on the ground.

The throw was perfect to Gablin in the left corner of the end zone and Fremd faced an uphill battle as the extra point was good, giving the Crusaders a 7-6 lead.

Samojedney admitted the 7-6 score was beginning to leave a sour taste in his mouth, but said he had confidence his team would move the ball well during the last minute.

"I had confidence with 56 seconds to go," he said. "We have worked well on our two-minute drill and a defensive shift they made stop our middle running game, made them vulnerable in the flats." The Vikes utilized several successful screen passes as a result.

The coach sees the dramatic comeback as the break his club may have needed to get untracked.

"That was the key turning point," he said. "This team needs that maturing. They needed that one good break to get them rolling. This could give them the winning edge. I'm super proud of them.

The Fremd coach was pleased with his team's win, but was quick to point out the high number of mistakes made, especially on big plays in the first half. Penalties cost the Vikings several key gains in the first half, including a 35-yard pass play, called back because a man was in motion.

Phillipe led the Vikings on the ground with 29 yards unofficially in nine carries.

Improved Bears, 49ers meet Sunday

Winners of 9 of their last 11 starts, the Chicago Bears head west to San Francisco Sunday seeking their sixth consecutive road victory in the 49ers' Candlestick Park playground.

The game will be televised on Channel 2 starting at 3:00 p.m.

Both teams recorded opening day wins against NFC Central Division opponents — the Bears edging Detroit 10-3, the 49ers knocking off Green Bay 26-14.

San Francisco will see an improved team compared to the one the 49ers embarrassed last November on the coast 31-3. The Bears could generate a mere 44 yards passing that day to complement Walter Payton's first 100-yard rushing effort (105 on 23).

But that was before Bob Avellini was promoted to starting quarterback for the Bears. Since the second year man from Maryland became the Bear signal caller, Chicago has won 9 and lost 3. Now some experts are calling Jack Pardee's second NFL team the most improved in the league.

Since the Bears have scored only 29 points in their last three victories, it's obvious the Bear offense has not been overwhelming. However, Avellini symbolizes the new Bear winning spirit that has infected the team.

Ex-California letterman Jeff Sevy, a Bear captain who mans the offensive right tackle spot, credits the improvement to cosmic energy. He and his fellow blockers call their unit the Cosmic Rays — claiming to absorb energy from the sun.

Whatever the reasons, the 49ers will be seeing a much better Chicago squad.

"They're 100 per cent improved over a year ago," said Denver's John Ralston.

"They are a more complete team and just do things better than they have in the past," relayed Rick Forzano Sunday in defeat.

While the offense has sputtered, the Bears have ridden their defense to wins on the last three weekends in stopping Tampa Bay 10-7, Washington 9-7 and now the Lions 10-3.

"Today's win was okay for us," explained Pardee Sunday night. "To be a sound football team you have to be able to depend on your kicking game and defense."

Conant snaps loss string, 14-3

by ART MUGALIAN

It was easily John Ayres' finest moment as Conant football coach. But then, the moments have seemed like hours and the days like years since Ayres took over the Cougar reins 15 months ago.

Ayres savored the moment after his Cougars broke a long, 15-game losing streak by stopping Palatine, 14-3, in Hoffman Estates Friday. The dry spell had stretched back to 1974, during the coaching tenure of Ralph Losee, the Cougars' last winning coach.

"It sure has been a long time in coming," Ayres marveled. "And it's a great feeling. But the thing that feels the best is that the kids were so hungry for a win — and now they've got it. That's what's so super."

Conant earned the victory by displaying a surprisingly stubborn defense that held Palatine to just 119 yards and eight first downs. The Pirates' only score, a 28-yard field goal by Mike Mikulan, was courtesy of a Conant fumble at their own 34.

Trailing 3-0 early in the second quarter, though, the Conant specialty team provided the game-winner. When the defense forced Palatine to punt from their own 22, Cougar senior Tony Stompanato stunned the huge home crowd with an electrifying 60-yard touchdown return down the right sideline. Stompanato made two excellent moves to get into the clear and then sidestepped Alan Knotek at the five to reach the endzone.

A 5-9, 158-pound I-back, Stompanato rushed for 117 yards in 15 carries, the second time in two weeks he has exceeded 100 on the ground. He also dazzled the fans with a couple of other kick returns.

"We work the specialty teams a lot in practice," said Ayres. "The kicking game is 60 per cent of it."

Stompanato ripped off gains of 22, 14 and 27 yards during Conant's only sustained drive, an 86-yard march that began late in the third quarter. The 27-yarder came on an option-right pitchout from QB Scott Schafer and set up Jeff Johnson's five-yard TD burst with 11:51 left.

"It took a little while for us to adjust to what Palatine was giving us on defense," said Ayres, whose team had moved the ball well in a 33-25 loss to Buffalo Grove last week. "But we've had two good games in a row now and we're pretty happy."

The Cougars' defense was what had Ayres most ecstatic.

"The kids played very well on defense," the coach said. "You know, we put in a long, rough week wondering if our defense was all that bad or Buffalo Grove was that good.

The defenders were led by Mike Weston, a rugged, 195-pound nose guard who was injured late in the game but returned to smother a fumble that killed off the Pirates' last chance.

Ayres also praised Dean Tuma, Jim Glascott, Jim Heisen, and Johnson, who played an outstanding game on gained 60 yards rushing.

"We're pretty happy with the secondary too," said Ayres.

Stompanato, Sam Assil and Rocky Pugliese helped to limit Palatine's Jeff Mosley to just one completion in seven attempts, good for six yards.

Palatine soph Jim Luzinski rushed for 56 yards in 16 carries to lead the Pirates' attack.

Cards' defense shows maturity in 6-0 triumph

by PAUL LOGAN

An inspiring Arlington Cardinal defense overpowered the visiting Golden Warriors of Sterling Friday night, 6-0.

"The defense finally came of age," said a very elated Chuck Haines, Arlington's head coach. "It took them about a quarter, but it was a great game for the defense."

Arlington's defense was on the field most of the first quarter as the Warriors dominated play. Twice this hard-running team marched for scores, the second time getting as far as the Cardinal 10. But both times the rugged Arlington defense stiffened.

Ending that second threat was safety Tom North, who intercepted the first of two passes. That was the biggest threat the Warriors were to mount all night. From late in the first quarter on, Arlington took charge.

Ron Anderson, a 6-foot-1, 190-pound senior fullback, appeared on his way to a big night after rolling up 48 yards in the first quarter. But Arlington contained this all-state candidate the rest of the way, limiting him to just 91 yards overall. (Anderson had rambled for over 150 in Sterling's 16-7 win over Moline last week.)

Motivated by the defense's play, Arlington's offense made its move late (2:19) in the first half. Quarterback Chuck Klein started the drive from his 15 with a 16-yard run. Excellent line blocking gave running back Jeff Richart an outside opening for a 24-yard gain. (He had 131 yards overall.)

The Sterling defense began anticipating the run. "When they saw two or three of them (runs), the halfbacks got itchy and came up," said Haines. So Richart caught them flatfooted with a 14-yard halfback option pass to North to the Sterling one.

Tom Gibadlo followed the blocks of Dean Johnson, Art Klein and Jim Zobelt score. The two-point conversion failed.

"One of the things we commented on at the half was the fact that now we would be able to tell if our two-platoon system would have an affect," said Haines. Sterling was using seven players both ways, including quarterback Ron Hayen and Anderson. Over the hard-fought game, Arlington's numbers wore down the Warriors.

Arlington could have locked up its first win of the season midway through the third quarter. Starting from the Card 39, they drove to the three only to lose a fumbled snap.

Despite this offensive error as well as a couple of other costly ones, Arlington's defense insured the victory. One sequence of plays early in the final period was typical. Gary Kempton dove to ruin a reverse play. Then Greg Kloiber and John Rothers sacked the quarterback, forcing a punt.

Although the whole defensive team played well, two other outstanding players were Jason Slezak and Jay Lenahan.

"The defense was many, many times more aggressive," said Haines, comparing its performance to the Cards' opening loss. They held Sterling to just six yards in the second half.

Sterling coach Jim Scott said his team "let a couple of shooting linebackers bother them. They (Warriors) were just frustrated.

"We were very undisciplined tonight and that's just not our bag. We got shook and lost our composure."

"I think this one will help us get over the hump," said Haines. "Before you win, there's always a doubt in your mind. . . When you get the first victory, you know winning is an attainable goal."

West falls but gives Evanston 12-7 battle

by BOB GALLAS

An interception with 43 seconds left in the game killed a Maine West scoring drive and helped Evanston escape with a 12-7 win over the scrappy Warriors at Maine West Friday night.

The Warriors, looking 100 per cent improved from their 21-0 opening loss to Prospect, battled the Wildkits to a scoreless tie in the first half, then came back to take a 7-6 lead in the fourth quarter after spotting Evanston a 6-0 third-quarter touchdown.

The Wildkits responded with a grinding 55-yard drive that used up eight minutes to take a 12-7 lead with 3:07 remaining in the game. But the Warriors, definite underdogs going into the contest, weren't dead yet.

West's quarterback Bob Zuccarini, who again had trouble finding receivers who can hold onto the football, engineered a last ditch drive that brought the Warriors from their own 37-yard line to the Wildkit 20 with 1:05 remaining when he hit tailback Bob Aslan with a 24-yard pass.

After throwing an incompletion, Zuccarini dropped back and tried to hit end Ken Kunze. But Evanston's Curtis Wideman stepped in and intercepted at the 10-yard line to end West's chances.

Warriors' coach Jim Morel was pleased, even in defeat, in the performance of his outsized and outmanned squad who had the touted Wildkits on the ropes late in the game.

"I felt if we could establish our running game early and stay close in the first half, we could open up," said Morel. 'We had to pass there at the end and they (Evanston) knew it. What else could we do?"

The Maine West defense was the key to the Warriors' success in the first half, forcing a fumble and getting to quarterback Bryan DuCree four times for losses totaling 27 yards.

Penalties hurt Evanston, especially in the first half when the Wildkits were penalized six times for 50 yards. The Warriors, on the other hand, played virtually penalty-free football, being penalized only three times for a total of 11 yards in the entire game, which opened the home season for the Warriors.

"I felt we did things tonight that showed we will be competitive this season," said Morel, whose charges are now 0-2 as they head into a seven-game conference slate that opens at Maine South next Saturday. "The difference this week was that we were able to prepare a game plan. Last week (against Prospect), we didn't have any idea what they were going to do."

A play that came back to haunt the Warriors happened midway through the second quarter, when Zuccarini passed to Jim Winiecki, who was three steps past the nearest Evanston defender at the Wildkit 20-yard line. Winiecki dropped the perfectly-thrown pass, however.

Yet another incompletion later, this time to Wayne Wishnew, the Warriors had to give up the football.

Doing it all on offense for the Wildkits was talented running back Don Johnson, who carried 18 times for 140 yards and came up with the big play when Evanston needed it.

Rob Earhart and Gary Crossland again gained the bulk of the Warriors' rushing yardage. Earhart carried 15 times for 43 yards while Crossland carried 11 times for 38 yards.

Hawks open league play on the road

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

With their opening triumph over Northwestern still riding high in their minds, the Harper Hawks will begin the serious business of winning the North Central Community College Conference (N4C) title when they travel to Illinois Valley tonight at 7:30.

Although IV coach Vince McMahon wants to play down the strength of his squad, Harper coach John Eliasik said, "This is the best team they've put together since I've seen them."

Illinois Valley opened their season with a win over Triton, but McMahon said, "We saw a lot of things we needed to work on. Just about everything, as a matter of fact."

He further rapped his team, saying, "We've got fair size, we're not real big, and our speed is just average."

Eliasik saw IV in their win over Triton.

"I was impressed with one running back they've got. (Lonnie) Denton ran well but he fumbled a lot, too."

Denton, a 5-10, 190-pound fullback, will team with quarterback Bill Manley and halfbacks Tom Samolinski (6-0, 195) and Mickey Venegas (5-9, 160) in the IV backfield.

Harper's backfield should find the going easier Saturday than against the huge and mobile Northwestern defense.

Dennis Drinan, who engineertd the Hawks' winning touchdown drive, played well enough to earn an encore at quarterback.

Butch Allen will be trying to add to the 136 rushing yards, most of any back in the game, he collected against Northwestern.

Illinois Valley has a history of throwing the ball, but Eliasik felt this was a weakness in their game with Triton.

McMahon remarked, "Whether we throw or not depends on the game. We have a few more people than we've had in the past and we were able to get the running game going against Triton.

Butch Allen

"I expect we'll probably have to throw a lot against Harper because we'll have trouble moving the ball on the ground against their defense."

Judging from its Northwestern performance, this could be the best defensive team Harper has ever had.

Pride will keep Harper's defenders going long after their bodies have become exhausted and Steve Long, a 6-6, 245-pound sophomore tackle, is the emodiment of that pride.

Against Northwestern Long, who played with a sore knee, had to be helped to his feet after each play.

After he was propped up, he tore into the Northwestern line and helped on the tackles.

Then he was picked back up to do it all over again.

"We'll show up," McMahon said, playing it close to the vest again, "but that's about all. Harper is a definite conference contender with a veteran defense and they're very, very tough."

Harper fans who wish to show up Saturday evening should take Interstate 80 west to Route 51. Then 51 south to route 6. Take Route 6 west through Peru until you see the St. Bede Academy sign about two miles west of Peru.

Turn on the road by the sign and follow it to the field.

Cross country invitational today

Defending champion Maine North returns to Rolling Meadows for the Mustang Cross Country Invitational today at 10 a.m. in the area headliner. The Norsemen are tough again this year, led as they are by state half-mile runnerup Chris Heroux.

The meet, to be held at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex, will feature races on four levels, including a girls competition.

In addition to Maine North and Rolling Meadows, the contending teams are Barrington, Luther North, Niles West, Elmwood Community, Lake Forest and Geneva.

The sophomore and varsity races will be 2.75 miles in length and the freshman and girls races will be two miles long.

In another meet today, Fremd, Hoffman Estates, Forest View, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling will collide at the Lake Park Invite. Hoffman Estates will try to defend its title.

Palatine, Arlington and Schaumburg will run in the Homewood-Flossmoor Invite, and Maine West competes in the Proviso West Invitational.

In junior college action, Harper will journey to the Lake County Invite.

Carmel surges from 9-0 deficit to tip Wheeling

by ANDY KEHE

Nobody ever really caught fire under the dim lights of Carmel, but the Corsairs of Carmel managed to put together two big fourth down plays to gain enough momentum to overcome a nine point deficit and set back the Wheeling Wildcats 13-9.

With the 'Cats leading 9-0 late in the third quarter the Corsairs pulled off a fake punt in which punter and quarterback Joe May teamed up with tight end Rich Drum for 13 yards and a big first down deep in their own territory.

That play enabled the Corsairs to continue a 93-yard, 12-play scoring drive to make the score at that point 9-7.

Another big fourth-down play kept the ball in Wheeling territory for the entire fourth quarter. A host of Carmel linemen blocked a Wildcat punt with three minutes left to play and the Corsairs took it in to put the game away.

A scoreless first quarter found Carmel controling the ball on the ground but unable to convert on third down plays.

Wheeling's attack was punchless but they got the first break when senior Kurt Peterson pounced on a fumble at the Carmel 28. From there Jeff Starkey picked up 25 yards on three carries, including a 10-yard touchdown scamper. The point after failed and the Cats led 6-0.

The Wildcats could not capitalize on the next break when Curt Rathje picked off an aerial at the Carmel 38. The drive stalled and Carmel took over at their own 14 but they were unable to move the ball.

A personal foul penalty following a Carmel punt gave Wheeing the ball 29 yards from paydirt. Five plays later the drive stalled on the eight and Rathje steered through a 25-yard field goal to make it 9-0 at the half.

In the second half Wheeling managed only 65 total yards with play remaining in their own territory much of the time. Carmel fullback Tom Miller handled the ground game picking up 131 yards just in the second half and scoring Carmel's first touchdown in that 93-yard drive. Miller also scored from one yard out in the fourth quarter to cap a 56-yard drive in eight plays to win it for Carmel.

The Wildcats managed only 149 total yards with Jon Piff and Starkey totaling 141 yards between them. Carmel had 262 yards, 223 on the ground, Tom Miller getting 187 himself. It was a different Carmel team in the second half, but the Wildcats never got it going in suffering their second defeat.

HUNTERS HAVE ALREADY taken to the field for squirrel, dove and teal, but the majority of hunting seasons are yet to come. Pheasant may be the most popular target in Illinois and shotgunners have from between Nov. 13 to Jan 15 to pursue ringneck.

Banner waterfowl campaign ahead

Pheasant numbers shrink

Outdoors
Jim Cook
Outdoor Editor
394-2300

There is still plenty of good fall fishing ahead, but it's never too early for hunters to cast their thoughts into the not too distant future.

Seasons for shooting squirrel, dove and teal have already commenced, and the popular deer and waterfowl campaigns are approaching rapidly on the calendar.

About this time every year, the Illinois Dept. of Conservation begins mailing its new regulations for the coming seasons. Some are as old as the department itself. Others are fresh out of legislative committees.

Almost all of them, though, are invariably forgotten, misinterpreted or intentionally abused. There is one glaring change from last season.

Hunter (or fluorescent) orange has become the accepted safety garment color for hunters in the field during shotgun deer seasons.

Illinois joins a long list of other states who have adopted hunter orange as a mandatory outer clothing color. The sharp decline in shooting accidents supports the legislation.

All hunters, regardless of whether they are tracking upland game or even trapping during the deer season in counties open to shotgun deer hunting, will be required to wear a cap and upper outer garment of vivid orange color.

In the past, hunters could have qualified by modeling an orange, red or yellow garment. By standardizing the hue, even more guesswork is taken out of business of identifying targets.

Now that you're dressed properly, let's take a look at what hunters can expect to see in the field this season.

Exceedingly dry conditions have hampered the nesting of some animals while catalyzing the breeding of others.

In northern Wisconsin, conditions have become so parched that farmers have been ordered to disconnect their electrically-charged fences which have been blamed for several small fires. Hunters are also forbidden to smoke while in the field in the Badger state.

Waterfowl hunting should prosper in Illinois if the weather does not become extreme. The duck and goose flock in Canada is in good shape and the lack of water along the Illinois River Valley has stimulated the growth of aquatic plants which will attract the feathered travelers.

Hunters, however, will have difficulty reaching blinds if rainfall does not swell low river and lake conditions.

Carlyle Lake, Illinois' largest and the site of most productive public duck hunting area in the state, is having trouble pumping water into several compartments.

Pheasant followers may not fair as well. Although the breeding population was up about 10 per cent in the spring, summer brood counts show a disappointing 20-25 per cent decrease.

If you need some encouragement, the ringneck season should be improved over the 1974 nightmare — the worst in state history.

Taking the blame for the poor crop of ringnecks is, again, the weather. The dry summer offered an opportunity for early mowing of prime roadside nesting habitat.

The arid conditions helped the rabbit populations across the state. The prolific cottontails were up 10 per cent during the spring and were not hurt by a somewhat mild winter.

The Illinois deer herd remains a question mark. The weather is always a pivotal element in determining what kind of shooting to expect.

Early predictions by state biologists suggest that this year's split-season harvest will not exceed the record 15,619 taken in 1975.

Opossum and raccoon hunters will find more targets afield, but it should be slim pickings for red and gray fox hunters. The sly one's numbers continue to decline. Coyotes, meanwhile, are flourishing.

Overall, Illinois hunters should enjoy another active fall and winter of shooting. But don't put that fishing pole away just yet.

Apply for hunting permit

Permit applications to hunt on state-managed pheasant, goose and duck hunting areas will be accepted by the Department of Conservation beginning Sept. 20. Applications received prior to Sept. 20 will be returned to the applicant.

Permits will be issued on a first-come, first-served basis. Each hunter will be allowed one permit to hunt a pheasant area, one permit for a goose area and one permit for the duck hunting area.

Holidays, opening days and weekends are in greatest demand, and hunters are urged to select other dates when possible. Applicants should give a second choice of dates when applying.

Non-hunters will not be allowed in the field or in hunting blinds during shooting hours. The use of hunting dogs is encouraged at all sites.

Put-and-take pheasant hunting begins Nov. 13 and run through Dec. 12 at the seven shooting areas. Sites and number of hunters allowed each day are: Carlyle Lake—175, Chain O'Lakes—90, Des Plaines—230, Green River—130, Iroquois County—125, Rend Lake—160 and Richland County—140.

Permit holders must check into the areas between 7 a.m. and 8 a.m. and available spaces will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis. A $5 daily usage fee is charged at the hunting sites.

Goose hunting at Horseshoe Lake and the Union County Wildlife area begins Nov. 23, the day after the season opens. Permits will be issued for each day of the season, except Monday days when sites are closed, and Dec. 24, 25 and 26. The season concludes Jan. 20 or when 22,000 geese have been harvested in the four-county quota zone.

Hunters must check into the shooting areas between 4 a.m. and 5 a.m. with drawings for blinds beginning at 5 a.m. Any day that blinds are available following the drawing they will be filled by a second drawing of those persons present. One hundred hunters are allowed at each area daily. A $5 daily usage fee is charged at the sites.

Permits for hunting at Rice Lake duck area will be issued by blind sites this year. Hunting begins Oct. 23 and ends Dec. 11. Hunters may apply in groups of from one to three persons, and sportsmen wishing to hunt with partners must apply together. Persons applying alone will be required to hunt alone.

Hunters must check into the area between 4 a.m. and 5 a.m. and drawings for blinds will begin at 5 a.m. Any day blinds are available after the drawing for permit holders, they will be awarded by a second drawing among persons present. There is a $3 daily usage fee charged at the site and hunters are required to rent a boat at the area at a $2 per day charge.

Hunters wishing permits should list their name and address, area they wish to hunt, first and second choice of hunting dates, and send to: Illinois Dept. of Conservation, Permit Office, 605-A State Office Bldg., Springfield, IL. 62706.

Boat safety class at Fremd

The U.S. Power Squadron is offering a free 12-week boating course at Fremd High School in Palatine starting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Members of the Fox Valley Squadron will conduct a series of classes on rules of the road, handling under adverse conditions, trailer boating and proper safety equipment.

La Verne Briesch, educational officer said, "The classes offer an opportunity to meet other boaters and exchange ideas while learning proper techniques from an experienced group of men dedicated to safe boating."

All men, women and children over the age of 12 are invited and Briesch suggests that the entire family attend in order to make each member an experienced boater.

LOT & HOME — $9,995

We must sell our 10 remaining sites within 200 yards of a lake near the Wisconsin Dells. This is about 3 hours from Chicago. These will be sold individually with an owner completion home of the purchaser's choice at 1 total package price. NEW SPACE SHUTTLE orbiter seems to be many things. In one view it looks like a horizontal penquin and in this one it looks much like Walt Disney's Mickey Mouse.

Space shuttle—half rocket, half plane—one day will allow 'all people' to visit outer space

PALMDALE, Calif. (UPI) — The first space shuttle, a squat craft resembling a regular airliner was unveiled Friday and hailed as the forerunner of a transportation system that will take "ordinary" people out of this world.

The space obiter shuttle 101 was tugged by a tractor out of a huge hangar of Rockwell International Corp. on the Mojave Desert to a roll of drums and a ceremony attended by about 1,500 persons including NASA and government VIPs.

The shuttle, which will make its first orbital flights in early 1979, is a half rocket-half plane which has the capability of making more than 100 round trips and, acting as a bus and truck, landing on solid ground instead of splashing in the ocean.

Dr. James C. Fletcher, NASA director, said the occasion marked the beginning of a new era — "the evolution of men in space — not just astronauts and cosmonauts but all people."

"It is the beginning of a system of space transportation in which we will enter the environment of space permanently.

"The shuttle will still require astronauts as pilots but any ordinary passenger can qualify with normal good health and NASA doctors have not set any age limit."

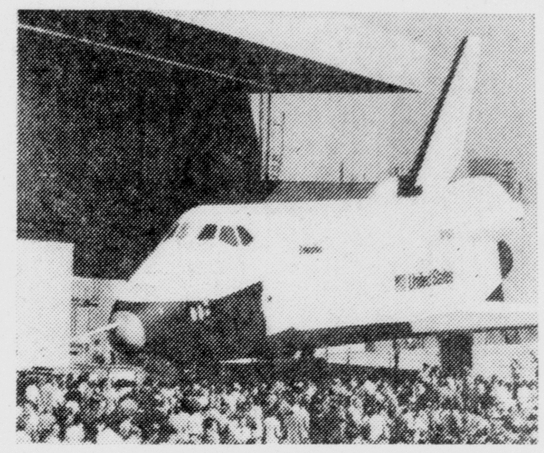
Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a member of the Senate Aeronautics and Space Sciences Committee, predicted that the $40 billion which Congress has appropriated for the over-all space program would turn out to be its best investment in U.S. history.

"We have made a better deal for America than the purchase of Alaska and — I might add — of Southern Arizona," Goldwater said.

William F. Rockwell Jr., board chairman of Rockwell International, said the country was about to embard "on one of the most exciting chapters in American history, productive use of space."

He saw manufacturing facilities engaged in productivity that "can only be achieved in the unique environment of space."

The black and white craft, 122 feet long with a wing span of 78 feet, has been in construction since June 1974. The first test flights will be made next February at nearby Edwards Air Force Base when the shuttle will be taken up piggyback on a specially converted 747 airliner.



NAMED THE "ENTERPRISE" the space shuttle orbiter can make 100 trips into earth orbit and back.

The first of three flights with crews at the controls will be made in July and August of 1977.

The first four crew members were introduced at the ceremony Friday. They are Fred W. Haise Jr., module pilot on the Apollo 13 mission; Air Force Lt. Col. Charles G. Fullerton; Air Force Col. Joe H. Engle and Navy Comdr. Richard H. Truly, all members of the astronaut program.

The first rocket launches into orbit will be from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

The shuttle does not have the capability of going to the moon or any of the plants but instead will be the workhorse launching and servicing other satellites and outer space craft.

Educators endorse Carter

By United Press International

Jimmy Carter Friday became the first presidential candidate ever to win endorsement from the 119-year-old National Education Assn., and told a meeting of the teachers he is dedicated to "universal literacy."

Of the almost 7,000 ballots counted at the NEA session in Washington, Carter received 81 per cent to 19 per cent for President Ford.

Ford divided his time at the White House duties and preparation for his first debate with Carter next Thursday.

His press secretary, Ron Nessen, said the President "can and will" run on the Republican platform although running mate Robert Dole and Vice President Nelson Rockefeller have described it as not totally consistent with all of Ford's views.

Nessen said Ford will conduct a double-barreled campaign, stressing his record during two years in the White House, and hitting hard on proposals he will push if elected in his own right.

Carter, addressing the NEA meeting before flying to Biloxi, Miss., and then to hometown Plains, Ga., for the weekend, said:

"I don't know why universal literacy is too high a goal but our political leaders have never been willing to commit themselves to it. We've neglected it too long and that's going to stop, starting next January when I take office."

The Democratic nominee drew cheers and applause from the teachers, especially when he said his daughter Amy 8, will attend public schools in Washington if he wins the White House.

Running mate Walter Mondale, back in Washington from a Midwest swing where he began using some sharper language in criticizing Ford, attended the NEA session with Carter and then took a campaign breather.

Dole also stopped over in the nation's capital en route from Boston to campaign appearances in Minnesota and Alabama, and proposed a national health insurance program designed to protect families from financial catastrophe due to major illness.

Addressing the opening session of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society's 30th anniversary conference, Dole said:

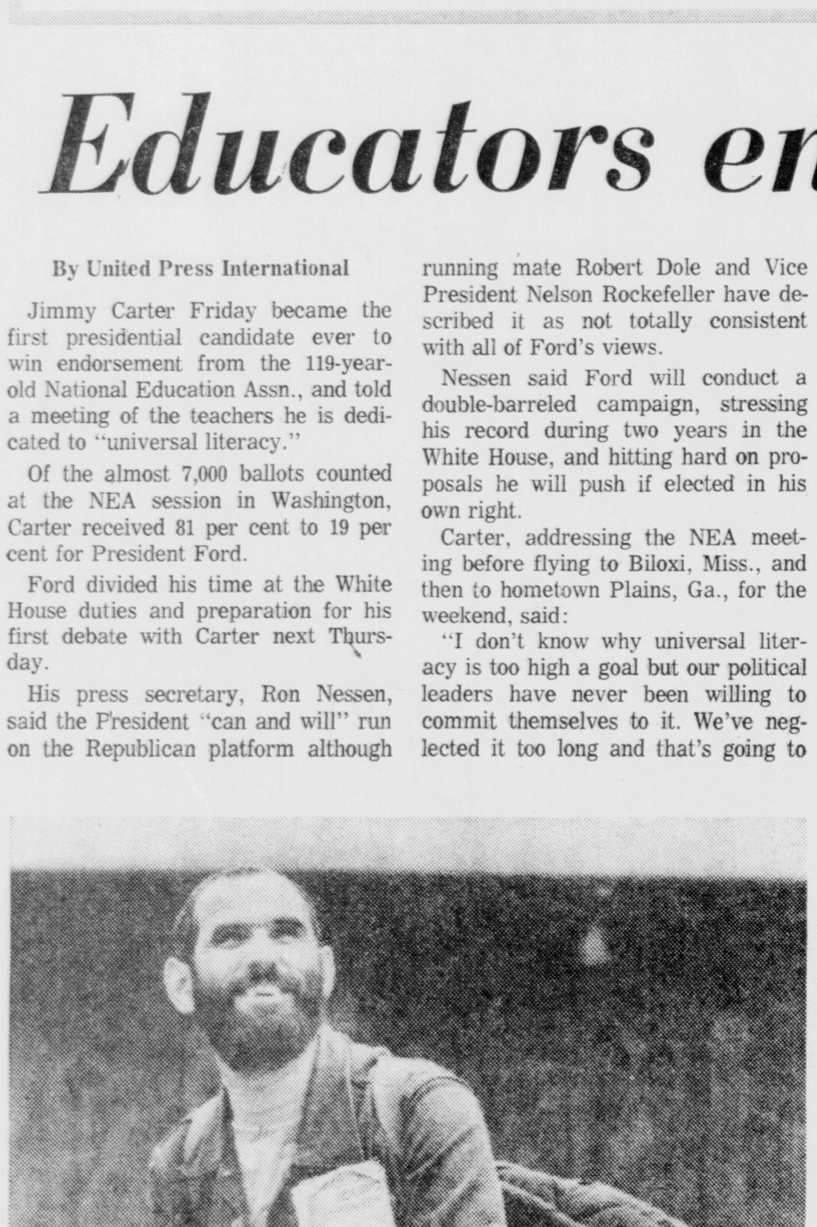
"As many of you here know so well, the cost of health care has risen to incredible heights. We need a program to protect families from financial disaster due to severe illness."

Ford has proposed such a program to Congress. Carter has called for a mandatory national health care plan.

In other developments:

• Eugene McCarthy lost a bid before the U.S. Supreme Court to get his name on the presidential ballot in Missouri as an independent candidate. He was rebuffed Tuesday on a similar bid for the Texas ballot, but a federal judge Thursday granted him a spot on the Delaware ticket in November.

• A federal judge Friday refused to order any changes in the presidential debates between Jimmy Carter and President Ford, scheduled to begin Thursday, and told challengers they must go to the U.S. Court of Appeals.



SVETOZAR DJUROVICH, 35, left Yugoslavia in late 1973 to walk around the world. He made it to Detroit this week. Djurovich, who lost his left leg when he fell off a train in 1962, suffered a broken right leg on his trek when a motorist sideswiped him.

Housing starts up 10% in month

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A surge in apartment building construction pushed housing starts up 10.9 per cent in August to the highest level in seven months, the U.S. Commerce Dept. said Friday.

President Ford and housing Sec. Carla Hills saw the development as a breakthrough for administration economic policy.

The report also said issuance of new housing construction permits, a precursor of still more improvement, rose 6.8 per cent to the highest level in over two years.

NUMERICALLY, the Commerce Dept. said, permits were issued on August for 1.298 million housing units, compared to 1.215 million in July and 1.444 million in March 1974.

New apartments and condominiums of five units or more accounted for 47.9 per cent of the August increase in construction starts, the report said, while construction of multifamily buildings of less than five units fell 8.7 per cent.

Housing starts of 1.542 million in August were at the highest level since the 1.547 million rate last February. Single-family starts accounted for nearly 1.2 million of the August starts, a pace that has been maintained for most of the year.

Multifamily starts of five units or more rose from 192,000 in July to 284,000 in August. Starts in buildings of two to four units slipped from 69,000 in July to 63,000 in August.

THE PRESIDENT, during an outing in the White House Rose Garden, commented:

"The sharp rebound in housing starts means having better markets in the months ahead. This good economic news means that what we have done has been successful in bringing inflation down. There is a growing optimism in America as far as the economy is concerned."

Mrs. Hills, in a statement released by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, said the housing upswing "indicates an improving economy."

"The pattern represents a continuation of the recovery in housing production which has been stimulated by President Ford's sure hand on the economy since he took office in August 1974," she said.

"Among the most significant indicators are the increases in multifamily starts and permits."

HUD recently began offering interest subsidies for apartment construction that previously had been available only for single-family homes.
